China Tuesday confirmed the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as the successor to Mao Tse-tung and leader of one-fourth of all mankind. A government spokesman also refused to discuss a reported purge against Mao's widow, Chiang Ching.

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt" in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldean. All three men remain free, but Judge John Sirica can now set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

The United Auto Workers Union announced Tuesday night that 170,000 Ford Motor Co. workers have approved a new three-year contract by a narrow 489-vote margin. The workers have been on strike for 28 days. Ford said workers will begin returning to work at some plants Wednesday.

Economy

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.56 points Monday, is at 932.35, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 939.63. In the last 12 sessions the closely followed Dow has plunged nearly 77 points.

Court nixes plea on nun's alimony

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimony. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimony to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law."

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostron, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostron.

"One is equal protection for Mr. Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rinella of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony

Changes urged to pump life into village Caucus

Arlington Heights Caucus officials Tuesday suggested amending bylaws to make candidate selection proceedings public and minimize electioneering in an effort to pump life into what some fear is a dying institution.

The Caucus, whose participants insist is a nonpolitical civic organization, recruits and nominates candidates for village office.

However, only one of the Caucus' five candidates won in the 1975 election and some read that as a vote of no confidence for the organization.

TUESDAY ABOUT 50 persons heard Caucus officials plot strategy for next year's elections and implore those present to participate in keeping the Caucus alive.

"The Caucus is dead right now unless you and others participate wholeheartedly in the community, cooperate with the mechanics of running two public meetings and provide suggestions for Caucus officials and candidates," said Lester H. Plotz, a Caucus participant.

"Our problems in the past have been apathy, ignorance and misunderstanding," he said. "I suspect that half the people in town think it makes no difference who runs for office and that few know what the Caucus is about. Others think we're just a bunch of old fogies trying to run the town.

Gerald Chapman, a member of the Caucus advisory board, suggested four bylaw changes to make the selection process more public and lessen electioneering.

CHAPMAN PROPOSED the bylaws be amended to that:

- All candidate recommendation committee meetings, except those where debate and balloting take place, be open to the public;

- Ballot counting and comments made during debates be kept confidential, but reporters could be allowed to attend if they agree not to publish balloting results or debate comments;

- Time between the final recommendation committee meeting and the second public meeting be as short as possible to minimize electioneering; and

- A campaign advisory committee be appointed by the executive board to develop activities and organize financing for Caucus candidates.

Wallace B. Daugherty, temporary Caucus vice chairman, said a public meeting will be Oct. 27 at Rand Junior High School, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd., to discuss bylaw changes and next year's election.

WHEELING TOWNSHIP officials say they hope to move into their new building at 1620 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by December. The new town hall will contain about 7,300 square feet and have space for the Northwest Mental Health Assn., Shelter Inc., and the Salvation Army's Community Counseling Center when completed. The building is expected to cost about $700,000.

High court proceedings cloaked in tradition

by BILL HILL

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The room is strictly quiet. Brief cases click loudly as they are opened. There is an occasional whisper.

More than 100 persons sit silently, almost as if they are on trial. Some seem in awe of the room — its marble columns, ornate ceilings, large oak doors and sculptured marble panels. Others merely are respectful of the institution they occupy.

The gavel pounds once, breaking the silence. All stand. It's an instruction that goes without saying. "God save the United States and this Honorable Court," chants the court crier, as Chief Justice Warren E. Burger emerges from behind the red velvet curtain that serves as a backdrop to the front of the Supreme Court chamber.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, the eight other justices, dressed in long, black robes, walk from behind four marble columns to the high-backed chairs at the mahogany bench.

Chief Justice Burger nods toward the two desks below him where lawyers sit nervously.

The gavel sounds again, the justices and gallery sit, and Burger announces the case number.

"Mr. Chief Justice, will it please the court," begins the attorney for the petitioner in the court's first case Tuesday.

Last arguments due in housing case

by BILL HILL

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Final arguments in the five-year-old Lincoln Green low-income housing controversy will be heard today by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The one-hour hearing begins at 10 a.m. Attorneys for the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., Chicago, each will be given 30 minutes to present their cases and to answer questions from the justices.

The village is asking the high court to overturn a decision by the 7th Circuit Court of Appeals that ruled in June 1973 that Arlington Heights cannot stop construction of the housing corporation's proposed low-and moderate-income housing project next to St. Viator High School, Euclid Avenue and Drury Lane.

THE CIRCUIT COURT ruling said the village's refusal in 1971 to rezone the 15-acre parcel for the Lincoln Green project had "racially discriminatory effects."

Village officials maintain that the 190-unit townhouse project would amount to spot zoning and is not compatible with the adjacent residential subdivisions.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel insists that the case should be considered by the high court as a zoning issue. He (Continued on Page 5)

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine-flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday — two in Oklahoma and one in Florida — but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 232,000 doses of swine flu vaccine were dispatched by the state last week to the area, although he did not know how many persons have been inoculated so far.

He said there have been no reports of adverse reactions among Illinois residents inoculated since last week.

"THE PROGRAM has been suspended temporarily," Hayes said. "We have heard from the Center for Disease Control (in Atlanta) and we did find out that these were three of the 1,200 people vaccinated in this state (in Pennsylvania)."

In light of the publicity that it has drawn, Dr. Lashof decided it would be best to suspend the program.

He said officials do not know how long the suspension will last. "Hopefully it will be very short," he said.

Hayes confirmed that Illinois' initial vaccine supply came from the Parke-Davis Co., the same firm that supplied vaccine to Pennsylvania, where the deaths occurred.

High court hears Viator case today

U.S. Supreme Court justices today will hear final arguments in the five-year-old Lincoln Green low-income housing controversy. Attorneys representing the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. of Chicago, will present in Washington D.C. their arguments in a one-hour hearing beginning at 10 a.m. The village is asking the high court to overturn a decision by the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals in June, 1975, that ruled the village cannot stop construction of the MHDC's low and moderate-income housing project near St. Viator High School, Euclid Avenue and Drury Lane. The village argues the proposed 190-unit project would amount to spot zoning incompatible with adjacent residential subdivisions. The MHDC argues the village's denial of the zoning in 1971 had "racially discriminatory effects."

Schaumburg man still critical

A 25-year-old Schaumburg father of two, injured in a two-car crash in which his wife and another man were killed, remained in critical condition Tuesday at a Waukegan hospital. Spokesmen at St. Theresa Hospital said Wayne Garreau, 1546 Revere Circle, remained critical following the Saturday night crash that killed his wife, Margaret, 27, and Mark Kafer, 21, of Wonder Lake. Garreau's 8-year-old son, Scott, was released from Woodstock Memorial Hospital, Woodstock, Tuesday, while a daughter, Caroline, 6, remained in good condition at the hospital's pediatrics section Tuesday night. Thomas Lebrecht, 21, of Wonder Lake, driver of the van that hit the Garreau's auto, was reported in critical condition Tuesday at Sherman Hospital, Elgin.

Interchange try futile: official

Attempts by Schaumburg officials to obtain an interchange at Roselle Road and Northwest Tollway are futile, an official of the state tollway authority said Tuesday. "That site is practically pointless," said Richard E. Blakely, executive administrator and secretary of the Illinois Tollway Authority. "It just doesn't make sense and we don't need or want an interchange at Roselle Road." Blakely's comments came in the wake of remarks made Monday by Village Mgr. John E. Costa, who told the Schaumburg Business Development Commission that "the village has not given up its crusade" for a Roselle Road interchange and that the project always has been part of the village's master plan.

Judge disqualifies self in case

Circuit Court Judge Joseph M. Wosk Tuesday disqualified himself from Wheeling's lawsuit against former officials and firms connected with the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal, saying he has known defendant James Stavros "for many a year." He said, "If I know a litigant and rule against the village in a case, then I could be seriously challenged, even though I have not seen or spoken with him (Stavros) recently," he said. The village in August filed suit against four former officials and five firms in an attempt to recoup bribe money paid the officials. The suit also asks $1 million in punitive damages. Wosk said the case has been sent back to Donald J. O'Brien, presiding judge of the Chancery Division of the Cook County Circuit Court, for reassignment.

School money woes—whose fault?

This is the second part of a two-part series on "education's legislators" — Illinois Senators and Representatives who sponsor much of the state's education legislation.

Five of these legislators were interviewed to find out where education stands on the Illinois political scene.

by DIANE GRANAT

"The legislature takes all the heat. We're that nameless, faceless body out there," says Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, one of "education's legislators" in the Illinois General Assembly.

Jaffe is referring to the financial crisis plaguing Illinois schools, a problem local school officials would like to say is the state's fault.

School officials say the state has not supplied the money it promised local districts several years ago when a new method of school funding was adopted. The lower-than-expected state aid coupled with declining enrollments, inflation and other factors have created budget deficits in many of the state's school districts.

Some of the state legislators who influence the appropriation of money to public schools said financial troubles are not exclusive to schools — they apply to all areas of state government.

"SPENDING HAS BEEN very careful in all human service areas and in all governmental agencies," Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said.

The solution to the schools' money problems will have to come from both the state and local districts, most of the legislators interviewed by The Herald, said.

"In this financial crunch, state government has been reviewing and evaluating spending. Local districts have to do the same thing," Mrs. Chapman said.

Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst, said all fingers are pointing to the state because "somebody has to take the rap." But "I don't think the state is going to come up with enough money to satisfy everybody," he said.

"THERE WILL ALWAYS BE a financial crisis," Hoffman said. "There will never be enough money, the only question will be, how much of a crisis will there be?"

But other legislators say they are trying to find answers to the schools' financial dilemma.

Rep. Arthur Berman, D-Chicago, said an improvement will come only with economic recovery nationwide.

"I don't think we'll see any way out of the crisis for two, maybe three years," Berman said. "It will take that long for the economy and state resources to climb to their level before the recession."

SEN. BRADLEY GLASS, R-Northbrook, said the elimination of the tax rollback provision should allow some relief for school districts. The former school funding law set a limit for districts to tax residents and rolled back tax rates if districts exceeded that limit. The new law removes that limit.

Glass said it may be impossible to fully fund the state aid formula without a tax increase. "We may need it, and education may be one of the reasons," Glass said, adding that he has "no commitment" to an increase in taxes.

Schools also may have to rely more on the federal government to solve their financial crisis, Mrs. Chapman said. "If the federal government picks up a larger percentage of the tab, that would free up dollars in other areas," she said.

Mrs. Chapman also suggested the use of "zero budgeting" by local school districts to control growing deficits. Zero-based budgeting requires agencies to justify not only increases in their proposed budgets but also expenditures in their current budgets.

"YOU JUST CAN'T keep piling programs on programs and dollars on dollars," Mrs. Chapman said. "You have to look at what to delete in order to make way for other programs that are more important."

While state officials ponder a solution to the schools' fiscal problems, there are other education needs that must be considered in the future, legislators say.

Collective bargaining is the one future legislation need on the list of each representative and senator interviewed.

"It's going to come," Jaffe said of a collective bargaining bill in Illinois. "You have collective bargaining anyway — why pretend you don't?"

Glass said a bargaining law should apply to all public employees, not just teachers.

Other items which "education's legislators" said must be considered by the state's lawmakers include:

- Declining enrollment — new ways to combat a problem seriously affecting suburban school districts.

- Special education — new federal mandates for the education of handicapped children may require structural changes at the state level.

- State board of education and state school superintendent — how much power should they have?

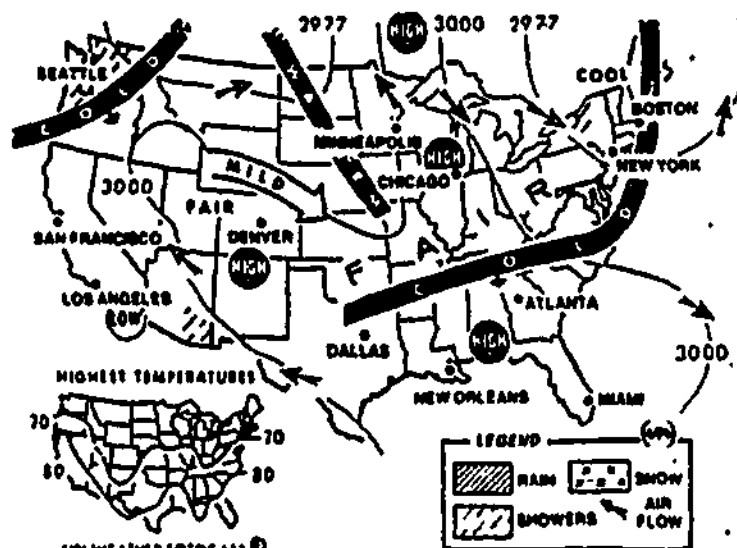

- Consolidation of school districts

Although some legislators feel the state government has a long way to go before it adequately serves education, Hoffman said the feeling among most legislators is that education is being treated fairly. "The problem is that in the past it wasn't," he said.

China confirms Hua as Mao's successor

Hua Kuo-feng

HONG KONG (UPI) — China confirmed Tuesday the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as the new chairman of China's Communist party and the successor to Mao Tse-tung as the leader of one-fourth of all mankind.

The government spokesman who told reporters in Peking Hua's position was definite would not discuss a reported purge against Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, and three other high officials from the radical, ultraleftist branch of the Communist party known as the "Shanghai Mafia."

But the noncommittal nature of the reply lent credence to Western and Communist news reports from Peking that the four radicals were arrested last week for plotting a power seizure after Mao's death Sept. 9.

Hua's accession to power and the radical purge may mean a sharp shift in China's policies, but the significance of the developments probably will not be known for months.

"The Chinese are very satisfied with the development of events," the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said in a dispatch from Peking.

The Italian news agency reported from Peking that about 40 persons were arrested in addition to Madame Mao, including Culture Minister Yu Hui-yung. The dispatch quoted "sources that are considered reliable."

Tanjug also reported the Chinese army increased its patrols in Peking's main square, on the capital's principal streets and in front of office buildings.

The West German news agency Deutsche Press Agentur said units of the Peking Guard Regiment drilled outside Peking's "Great Hall of the People" Tuesday and "stimulated target shooting with light machine guns." Such military exercises are not unusual in Peking, but DPA said observers thought the drill could be a show of force in view of the rumors of widespread leadership changes.

Relatively little is known of Hua's background. Official Chinese documents do not even list his age, although he is generally thought to be in his 50s.

Sources in Peking whom UPI contacted by telephone from Hong Kong said an official of the foreign ministry's information department confirmed Hua's elevation to reporters at a welcoming banquet for visiting Papua New Guinea Prime Minister Michael Somare.

Both Chinese Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien, a close associate of the late Premier Chou En-lai, and Somare referred to Hua in banquet toasts only as "premier." Reporters asked the spokesman, "How long will we have to wait before there is an official announcement on Hua's appointment?"

"I can now confirm that he is chairman of the Communist Party Central Committee," the spokesman replied.

The Chinese official said an official announcement was being delayed because it was necessary to inform party cadres throughout China — the world's most populous nation, with more than 800 million people — of the action first, sources told UPI.

The spokesman responded with a terse "no comment" when asked about the reported arrest of Mao's 62-year-old widow and the Shanghai trio — Chang Chung —Chiao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-yuan.

Wang in his 40s, is a party vice chairman who some observers felt held a No. 3 ranking in China after Mao and Hua. Chang, in his 60s and No. 4 in the party hierarchy, is party secretary general and chief political commissar of the armed forces. Yao, 50, a party theoretician, has been a member of the political bureau (Politburo) of the central committee since 1969. All are ranking members of the Shanghai party branch and have been closely associated with Madame Mao since their leadership of the Cultural Revolution 10 years ago.

Although there has been no hard evidence to support the reports of their purge, diplomats and other China analysts in Peking and Hong Kong said the lack of an official denial gave credence to the reports.

A "no comment" by Chinese officials to such reports is unusual. The past pattern has been for officials to issue vigorous denials of reports that have no basis in fact.

Peking sources said the purge of the four radicals now was being talked about openly among low-level party cadres in Peking.

Action was taken against Madame Mao and the three Shanghai leaders because of their opposition to Hua's elevation to the party chairmanship and an alleged plot to seize power, the sources said.

The appointment of Premier Hua caught China watchers in the United States off guard but American experts believe his elevation eventually will lead to closer ties between the two countries.

Ehrlichman, Haldeman and Mitchell to jail?

Watergate trio's convictions upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals, citing "overwhelming evidence of their guilt," Tuesday affirmed the Watergate coverup convictions and eight-year prison sentences of former Nixon aides John N. Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman.

With a single exception in its 201-page opinion, the appeals panel upheld dozens of decisions and instructions by Judge John J. Sirica during the three-month trial.

The seven appeals judges, dealing separately with numerous claims by the three defendants, held that Sirica did not abuse his discretion, commit legal error or reveal prejudice.

All three men remain free, but Sirica now can set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

The court found a single reversible error in the companion appeal by former Assistant Attorney General Robert Mardian. The court said Sirica should have permitted Mardian to stand trial apart from the other three because his lawyer was hospitalized early in the trial and Mardian had relatively little involvement in the Watergate coverup.

The court said there was no evidence the jury verdict "rested on anything other than the overwhelming evidence of their guilt." It said Sirica "looked particular care" in questioning prospective jurors "to ensure that the trial was a fair one."

On one major point raised by Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell, the appeals court ruled 6 to 1 that their cases were not prejudiced by pre-trial publicity.

The four men were convicted by a jury Jan. 1, 1975, on charges they conspired to obstruct justice and lied to a grand jury to cover up White House involvement in the 1972 break-in at national Democratic headquarters.

Haldeman, once President Nixon's chief of staff, Ehrlichman, the one-time No. 2 man at the White House, and Mitchell, the former attorney general, each drew a 2½ to eight-year prison sentence. Mardian, convicted only of conspiracy, was sentenced to 10 months to three years in prison.

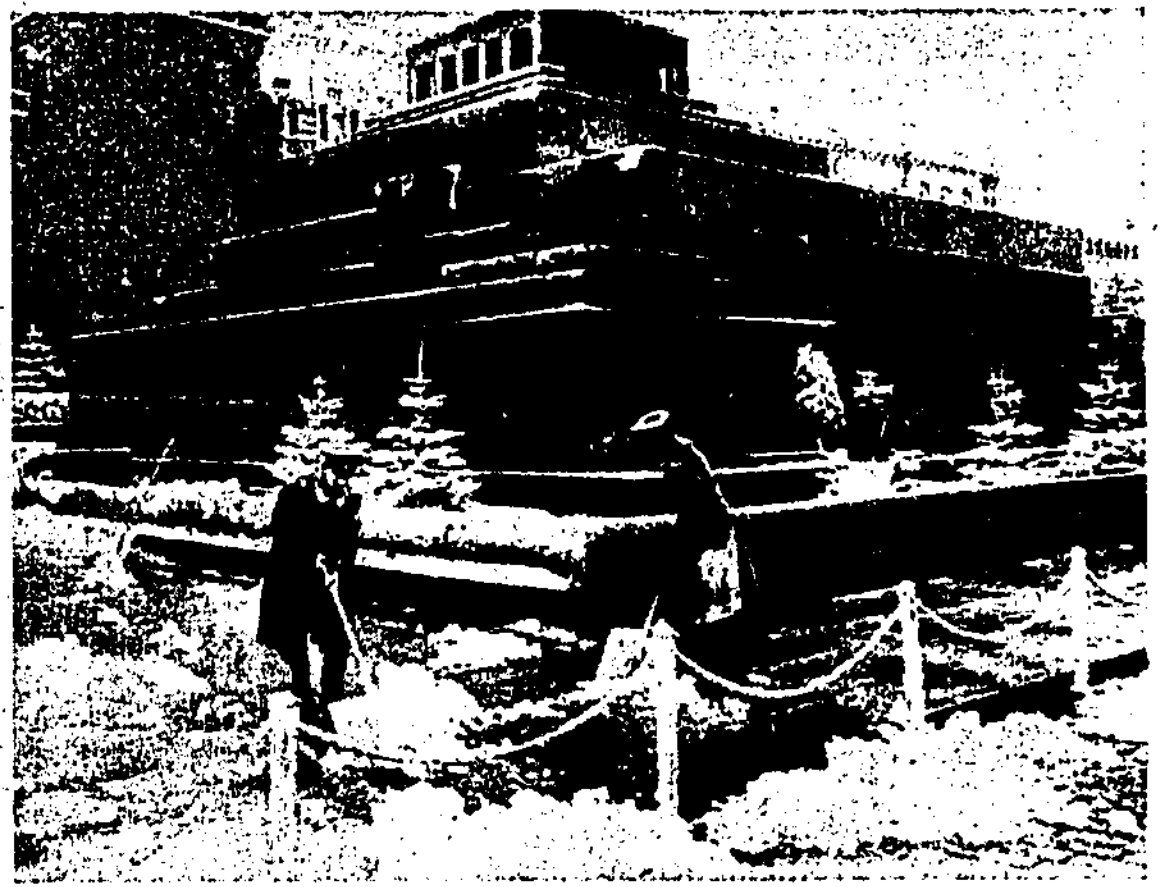

There was no immediate comment from Haldeman, Ehrlichman or Mitchell.

But their lawyers said they would take their appeal to the Supreme Court.

As for Mardian, the Watergate Special Prosecutor's Office can drop the charges, retry him or appeal its defeat to the Supreme Court.

If Mitchell's conviction stands, he could become the first former member of the Cabinet to go behind bars since former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall was imprisoned for his role in the Teapot Dome scandal of the 1920s.

Ehrlichman already is asking the Supreme Court to reverse his conviction and 20-month to five-year sentence for approving the break-in by White House "plumbers" at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. On the question of pre-trial publicity, the judges held it amounted to factual accounts of events.

Insurgents ambush Thai police car

Communist insurgents ambushed Thai government forces near the Malaysian border Tuesday in the first attack since last week's military coup, police sources said. Three policemen were killed and one was wounded in the attack at a hilltop pass in the Padma mountains of Trang province. An estimated 50 Communist guerrillas riddled a police patrol car with small arms fire, grabbed two HK33 German-designed rifles and two revolvers from the dead and wounded policemen, then hurled a grenade into the car before fleeing back into the jungle. The stretch of highway where the ambush occurred has been the scene of Communist guerrilla activity for a year.

Panel to probe Indian jetliner crash

Indian Aviation Minister Raj Bahadur said Tuesday a court of inquiry headed by a high court judge will investigate the crash of an Indian Airlines jetliner that killed all 93 persons aboard. Witnesses said the French-built Caravelle jet caught fire and crashed shortly after takeoff early Tuesday on a domestic flight to Madras. Police said 75 bodies had been recovered from the charred wreckage, which was carrying 89 passengers and a crew of six. It was not immediately determined whether any foreigners were aboard.

Court to decide foster parents issue

The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to decide whether it is constitutional for state or local agencies to take children away from foster parents without a hearing. In a brief order, the court accepted for review a ruling by a three-judge federal court striking down provisions in New York state and New York City laws on grounds they contained no provision for such independent fact-finding.

In another action, the court rejected challenges of a Federal Communications Commission rule, upheld 2 to 1 by the U.S. Court of Appeals here, which opened the way for the debates between President Ford and Jimmy Carter. The FCC ruled that news conferences by political candidates, and by extension the debates, are not subject to equal time requirements. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court by the Democratic National Committee and other parties.

Ford signs toxic substances bill

Hailing it as a major environmental advance, President Ford Tuesday signed into law legislation establishing new federal controls on chemicals and other toxic substances which could harm human health and the environment. The bill, which was supported by 30 environmental, labor and consumer groups, also gives the EPA power to prevent or limit a chemical's use after a study of its health and environmental impact. Included is a two-year ban on a hazardous chemical known as PCBs.

Ford also signed a bill to maintain federal funding for health, education, welfare and labor programs at present levels until the next Congress enacts legislation appropriating money for them.

Ford admits mistake, lashes Carter

By United Press International
President Ford, under a barrage of attacks from Jimmy Carter, lashed back at his Democratic challenger Tuesday by questioning his leadership and ability to "guide the fortunes of the most powerful nation on Earth."

Carter issued a statement saying he would restructure the Medicaid system and accused the Ford administration of failing to combat fraud in the program, while trying to shift a larger share of the hospital bill to the patient.

Ford, shortly before starting his campaign swing to New York and New Jersey, questioned whether a candidate who calls for a "cut in the defense budget, and who then complains that we are 'not strong any more,' as Gov. Carter has done, is truly the man to govern the only country in the world that can assure the defense of freedom."

The comments followed a White House meeting with a group of ethnic leaders in which Ford admitted he made a "mistake" last week in saying the Russians do not dominate Eastern Europe.

"I did not express myself clearly; I admit it," Ford said of the remark which caused problems for his campaign, particularly among Americans with ties to Eastern Europe.

But then going on the attack, Ford challenged whether "a man who shows so little appreciation of America's strength, America's respect, and America's needs — as my opponent has done in this campaign — should be allowed to guide the fortunes of the most powerful nation on Earth."

Later, Ford spoke at a Jewish high school in Brooklyn and told a cheering crowd of about 5,000 that he will act "again and again and again" to seek the release of Jews who wish to emigrate from the Soviet Union.

The President also vowed to go to Israel if elected and if such a trip would aid peace in the Middle East.

Carter, beginning a two-day rest stop at his home in Plains, Ga., complained that it has been a month since congressional probes revealed that between $3 billion and $5 billion in Medicaid money is being wasted in fraud and "still the administration has made no response at all."

"It has offered no substantial proposals, not even a suggestion as to how it intends to reclaim these vast sums for the victims of poverty and illness who so desperately need help," he said.

He also claimed that administration proposals "would impose on Medicare patients the staggering burden of $1 billion in additional payment responsibilities."

Carter said he would restructure the system to eliminate fraud and waste as part of a gradual phasing-in of a national, comprehensive health care system. He also proposed reimbursing hospitals under a bonus system if they are able to cut costs and deliver services at rates lower than levels set by the government.

Abortion restraining order extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government said in U.S. District Court Tuesday that states may be required to provide free abortions even though the use of federal funds is barred under new legislation.

But attorneys for low income women told Judge John Sirica that up to 1,000 women a day, by government estimate, will be denied abortions that had been financed under Medicaid because of the new prohibition.

Sirica extended for another 10 days a temporary restraining order against government application of the law and took the case under advisement.

Abortion has figured as a presidential campaign issue and the law providing operating funds for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that took effect Oct. 1 provides that "None of the funds contained in this act shall be used to perform abortions, except when the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term."

This, however, does not preclude states from providing abortions to indigent women with state funds, Justice Department attorney David Anderson told the court.

"It may be, as a number of recent cases hold, that the law requires the state to fund a woman's exercise of her constitutional right to an abortion in certain circumstances," the government argued in its legal brief.

Neither Maryland, Virginia nor the District of Columbia has refused or proposed to refuse abortions to any indigent woman, the brief said.

"There is therefore no indication that the Congress' failure to provide funds for abortion will in any way interfere with the plaintiffs' opportunity to obtain one," the government argued.

But an attorney for several unidentified pregnant women, including one unmarried mother of five, said the government's arguments "ignore the inevitable and obvious impact on pregnant indigent women who depend upon Medicaid for their medical care."

He said the states and the District of Columbia "have no funds" to replace the loss of the estimated $40 million to $45 million HEW spends annually for between 250,000 and 300,000 abortions.

Attorney Roy Lucas, representing the women, said some hospitals and clinics were discontinuing Medicaid abortions until the litigation is settled. It will be "little consolation" to women denied abortions now if court suits eventually are settled in their favor, he said.

George Washington ranked 6-star general by Ford

President Ford Tuesday signed a bill that promotes George Washington to the rank of six-star general of the armies so that the father of his country would stand above "all other grades of the Army, past and present."

The move, however, created something of a dispute among military historians, who noted that in 1919 Congress also promoted Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing to six-star general of the armies with similar statements. It wanted him to outrank all other military heroes. Pershing never wore his six-star rank. He preferred to continue to wear the uniform of a four-star general.

Restraint of trade charged in gas suit

A $20 million suit was filed in U.S. District Court Tuesday charging the American Gas Assn., six utility companies and seven individuals with restraint of trade in trying to keep an energy-saving device off the market. Jack McInerney, an attorney for Thrifty-Vent Inc., Chicago, said the device, called the Thrifty-Vent, "replaces the draft diverter on a furnace" and reduces fuel consumption. It gives customers a "saving of 8 to 16 per cent" on their total gas bill, he said. AGA refused to test the device for safety, the suit says, and utility companies would not allow gas to be delivered to furnaces containing the device unless the AGA would give its approval, even though inspectors in several cities had declared the device safe.

The utilities named in the suit include: Northern Illinois Gas Co.; People's Gas, Light and Coke Co.; Central Illinois Public Service Co.; Indiana Gas Co., Inc.; Metropolitan Utilities District, Omaha, Neb.; and the Illinois Power Co. Many gas manufacturers belong to the AGA, which has headquarters in Washington, D.C.

A Cook County grand jury Tuesday indicted Ronald Carrasquillo, 18, on one count of attempted murder and one count of aggravated battery in the shooting of an off-duty Chicago policeman. Carrasquillo, a reputed gang member, is accused of shooting patrolman Terrence Loftus in the face Sunday when the police officer tried to break up a gang fight on the city's West Side. Loftus died later Tuesday in St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Illinois briefs

Ford to take state on Nov. 2: Percy

Sen. Charles Percy said Tuesday he does not think either President Ford or Jimmy Carter has inspired strong convictions among supporters, but predicted Ford will carry Illinois by a few percentage points. He said Ford's remarks on Eastern Europe could have lost him the election if they had been made later in the campaign because of the "thinness" of Ford's support. But he said, "There's time to recover."

Percy also said he will probably seek reelection in 1978 and expects substantial Democratic support if Gov. Daniel Walker runs against him. Walker has said he might be interested in making the challenge, and Mayor Richard J. Daley has indicated he might support Walker in the effort.

Thompson raps Daley policies

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson said Tuesday Mayor Richard J. Daley discriminates politically against Eastern European ethnic groups in Chicago while expressing sympathy for their relatives overseas. "The mayor's concern for Poles, Hungarians, Rumanians and Yugoslavs in Eastern Europe is a touching one not exactly matched by his concern for those ethnic groups in the city of Chicago in the way he allows them to participate in the political process," Thompson told a news conference. "There's sort of a double standard involved there," he said. "I dare say the Poles in the city of Chicago would be even happier with the mayor and the Democratic party if on other occasions he allowed them a little more freedom."

Thompson made the comments in response to a remark Daley made after the second presidential debate. The mayor asked whether Thompson agreed with Ford that Eastern Europe is not under Soviet domination. Thompson said Tuesday, "I think the President was wrong. I think I know what he was trying to say. But it was simply wrong to say the Soviet Union does not dominate those countries."

2 jail escapees sentenced

Two of the five prisoners who escaped the U.S. Penitentiary near Marion Oct. 10, 1973, touching off a mammoth manhunt, were sentenced Tuesday in U.S. District Court to consecutive terms of 5 years each on escape charges. All five prisoners later were recaptured. The sentences against Henry M. Gargano, 44, Chicago, and Arthur T. Mankins, 38, Germantown, N.C., were imposed Tuesday by Judge William G. Juergens on guilty pleas entered Sept. 2. Mankins also was sentenced to an additional 10-year consecutive term on four firearms charges. The escape charge sentence against Gargano will be consecutive to a 199-year sentence he was serving at the time of the escape for the murder of two policemen while committing a bank robbery, federal authorities said.

"It is highly unlikely a bad batch of vaccine was the cause of these deaths," he said.

At the Bureau of Biologics in Bethesda, Md., researchers prepared to look for contamination in residue taken from the bottles of vaccine used to inoculate the victims.

J. Donald Millar, director of the disease control center's Bureau of State Services, said if the residue showed no contamination, and "pending any further developments," the center's investigation could be halted today.

"As far as I'm concerned, the only investigation that remains is the question of what's in those (serum) bottles," Millar said. "That is a very remote possibility, but the only possibility, that the vaccine was involved in the deaths."

OFFICIALS in Allegheny County, Pa., New Mexico, Illinois, Louisiana, Maine, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, and Wisconsin halted their swine flu immunization programs while the Pennsylvania deaths were being studied. Additionally, several states that received some of the 1.1 million doses of vaccine in the lot manufactured by Parke-Davis Pharmaceuticals of Detroit, Mich. shelved it pending the investigation.

The type of vaccine used by the victims was bivalent, and the lot in question was shipped mainly to Eastern and Midwestern states.

In Detroit, a Parke-Davis spokesman said the company was cooperating with Pennsylvania officials on the case and said he understood the vaccine sent there had been rechecked "and found up to specifications." He said a check at 20 other vaccination sites had disclosed no problems.

The victims were Julia Bucci, 75, Charles Gabig, 71 and Ella Michael, 74, all of Pittsburgh. Each had past heart ailments, and Mrs. Bucci additionally had high blood pressure and Mrs. Michael suffered from emphysema.

THEY WERE IMMUNIZED as part of the government's $135 million program to protect Americans from a possible outbreak of flu this fall and winter.

Most states followed Seiber's advice to continue the inoculations, and the reaction from New Jersey Health Comr. Joanne Finley, who believed the deaths were the normal results of old age, was typical:

"Unfortunately, old people are going to die," she said.

no evidence to link the vaccine to the deaths.

The three deaths involved two women and a man, all elderly and believed to have suffered from chronic heart conditions. The three died Tuesday within hours of receiving swine flu inoculations at a Pittsburgh clinic on Monday.

DR. BROWN SAID late Tuesday at least two of the deaths were confirmed by Pennsylvania coroners to be heart attacks.

He said the normal daily death rate among persons older than 70 is one per 4,000 persons, and that three deaths could have been caused by natural causes.

In Suburban Cook County, some 15,000 doses of vaccine have been sent for the first inoculations of the elderly, said Dr. John B. Hall, county health director.

First priority was to go to residents of more than 100 nursing homes, he said, with the following shipment earmarked for persons 60 and older and those in medical high risk categories, he said.

Earlier Tuesday, state and county public health officials had said the swine flu program would continue because no direct link between the vaccine and the deaths has been discovered.

Refrigeration
Roll

by Ed Landwehr

A frequent question at Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1600 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights is the one about "picture roll" when the refrigerator starts up.

Ordinarily your TV screen is momentarily affected by the voltage drop when an appliance starts, particularly when it is on the same circuit. The picture will make a slight movement or possibly one roll over. However, it should not cause a continuing roll. If it does, one reason could be that your appliance is emitting a spark or unusual pulse from the motor. Repairing the appliance or putting it on another circuit will solve this problem for your TV comfort. Keep calling that number 325-9700; we're glad to be of service to you.

DON JOHNSON fillets fish at his fish market, Don's Docks, 1220 Miner St., Des Plaines. He and other small commercial fishermen now are prohibited from fishing in Lake Michigan.

Lake Michigan fishing ban didn't stop Johnsons

by DIANE MERMIGAS

There is no other way of life for Don Johnson and his family.

The state restricted commercial fishing in Lake Michigan about a year ago, limiting fishing to three large commercial operations selected each year by lottery. The severe restrictions did not force the closing of Johnson's small fish market in Des Plaines, but it keeps him from operating his boat off Illinois shores.

Johnson said the restriction raised the price of fresh and frozen fish for both the businessman and the consumer because he has been forced to buy his fish from Canada and the American coast.

HE, HIS WIFE and their children work hard in their shop at 1220 Miner St. and still make a good living at what they do, which for the most part is scaling, cleaning and preparing all types of fish.

In his reserved, easy manner, Johnson never will say much about the fact that the state's action has changed his business because, actually, it has changed his entire life. Johnson's 24-year-old son, Andy, grew up on a boat that surged through the Great Lakes waters in a quest for perch.

The boat was his grandfather's, the "Daryl J.," a fisherman's vessel that extended 25 feet from the bow to the afterdeck and stretched 10 feet at the beam.

TODAY THE BOAT remains docked at Washington Island, just north of Door County, Wis., where Grandfather Johnson has retired and from where the three generations of Norwegian seamen came.

It is used only for pleasure now, because Johnson and his son no longer rise with the sun at 4 a.m. to head out to Lake Michigan for a day's catch which must be cleaned and then sold.

"It was not fun, but a lot of hard work, getting up that early and working with a temperamental Lake Michigan," Johnson said.

"It was back-breaking work, repairing the nets, pulling in the tugs of fish, scaling and filleting them, then selling them in our store the same day," he said.

"BUT THERE WAS a pride that the fisherman could take in selling and serving his own catch. That's gone now," Johnson said.

The cold and miserable days of blowing wind and water were trying on a man's nerves, but the work was "rewarding," Johnson and his son agree.

There was some element of the unknown in the business back then. During the spring-to-fall fishing season, you never knew just what you'd catch each day. It could be anywhere from five to several hundred pounds of perch.

Now, Andy travels to the Fulton Avenue fish market in Chicago four times each week to buy 60-pound crates of fresh lake perch, wall-eyed pike, trout and smelt; frozen ocean fish like turbot or shrimp from the gulf of Mexico.

There's still the scaling and cleaning, which is part of the day-long preparation requiring the constant effort of four persons. What seems incidental, like the pouring of seafood sauce into individual containers, the folding of napkins, the making of potato salad and cole slaw, and the frying of fish in a family recipe better is not.

Sister Cheryl and Andy's wife, Donna, also help in the shop, one of three fish markets that the Des Plaines family has owned in the city during the past 16 years.

The Johnsons keep it a family business "because you can always depend on your family" and because "it takes years of work to master the art of cleaning shrimp and filleting fish," Cheryl said.

Don's Dock, as the family shop is called, sells 500 pounds of fish weekly to long-time customers, lunch-time executives, dieters who have discovered the low-cholesterol features of seafood and even to mischievous children who come in asking for shark's meat, Johnson said.

FRIDAY'S TRADITIONALLY "fish day," and things are busiest during holidays and the Lenten season. The family still does a healthy business every day the store is open, Johnson said. The shop is closed Mondays.

Grandfather Johnson still passes his time in Washington Island hook and lining off the docks, but the rest of the family doesn't find recreational fishing as exciting a match as commercial fishing.

Grandfather Johnson, who came to Chicago as a young man of 18 with the ambitious dreams of a commercial fisherman, was somewhat distressed by the state's ban against such fishing more than a year ago, Johnson said.

"But, I still love my work. That ban never really threatened our existence," he said. "It just made us change our ways a little."

New unit school hearings for Dist. 59 begin today

Public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Elk Grove High School.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in High School Dist. 214 in addition to Dist. 59 schools. The elementary and high schools would be placed under one school board and administration and the unit district would have the same boundaries as Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

DIST. 59 OFFICIALS favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

Anyone affected by the proposed unit district may testify at tonight's hearing at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Future hearing dates and times will be established before tonight's hearing ends about 10 p.m.

After all interested parties have been heard, County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Cronin will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

The housing corporation's argument is that the village refused to rezone the site for Lincoln Green for racially discriminatory reasons.

"We've argued from the beginning that the motivation of the village was to keep blacks out. People at meetings pretty much said 'We don't want those sort of people in Arlington Heights,'" Caruso said.

"There's no question that the reason this case is where it is because racial discrimination is involved. Equal protection and racial discrimination—that is the central issue," he said.

SIEGEL HAS argued in the district court and the circuit court that the case is a "garden-variety" zoning issue.

"There were absolutely no racial overtones in that case. We (Arlington Heights) have never received a single complaint by any blacks in Arlington Heights that they have been discriminated against by developers, apartment managers or real estate brokers," he said.

"My greatest regret about this case is that the village has been slandered in that regard," he said.

Housing corporation attorneys have called Arlington Heights "the most residentially segregated community" in the Chicago area. Of the 84,000 residents in the village in 1970, there were only 27 blacks.

A special census conducted this summer has revealed that of 71,012 persons now living in Arlington Heights, 200 are blacks.

The Circuit Court's written decision said that the segregated nature of housing in Arlington Heights required an evaluation of the effects of the failure to rezone the Lincoln Green site.

"THOUGH THE building of this project might have only minimal effects in terms of alleviating the segregative housing problem for the entire Chicago area, it might well result in increasing Arlington Heights' minority population by over 1,000 per cent," Judge Luther M. Swygert wrote.

"What is even more crucial is that the suburb has not sponsored nor participated in any low-income housing developments, nor does the record reflect any such plans for the future," he said.

Siegel says the Circuit Court opinion, if upheld, will upset local zoning laws nationwide.

"They are telling us we must make zoning decisions on the basis of the race of people who would live there rather than on the best use of the land. It would mean anyone who came in with plans to build low- and moderate-income housing could overturn existing zoning where there wasn't a substantial number of blacks," Siegel said.

"My understanding of the 14th Amendment is that you can not discriminate on the basis of race, which would mean the court of appeals decision is discriminatory," he said.

The objections of homeowners in the area of St. Viator High School are as intense now as they were in 1971 when more than 700 persons attended a plan commission meeting on the Lincoln Green proposal, said Clark Barks, president of the Greater Eastwood Community Assn.

"Our objections are as intense as ever, but not for the reasons most people think. We believe that project would be spot zoning and we don't want to see it rezoned (for multi-family use) for anybody. It would take away the neighborhood's continuity," Barks said.

Court action cloaked in tradition

Heights, who at 10 a.m. today will address the U.S. Supreme Court justices similarly as oral arguments begin in the village's case against the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. of Chicago.

F. WILLIS CARUSO, Carol M. Petersen and Robert G. Schwemm, the development corporation's attorneys, also are in Tuesday morning's audience.

The cases they watch are in no way similar to the one they will argue before the court, but the attorneys are able to get a better idea of how the court conducts its business.

Siegel will speak first today. He will have 30 minutes to state the village's position. Caruso will argue approximately 30 minutes, and then Siegel will have a chance to respond to Caruso's statements during whatever is left of the 60 minutes set aside for the five-year-old case.

The attorneys will stand at a lectern placed in front of the center of the

MUCH OF THE time allotted to the attorneys will be spent answering questions, which the justices fire rapidly.

The attorneys have no chance to ramble and often are interrupted ungraciously by a justice's question. If their questions are dodged, the justices do not hide their impatience.

One attorney Tuesday, pinned down by Justice Stevens, embarrassingly said, "I believe you have me, your Honor."

There always remains that politeness, the constant respect. Like the quill pens, black robes and opening chant by the court crier, respect is a tradition that has persisted on the Supreme Court through the years.

Watch committee meeting tonight

The Arlington Heights Neighborhood Watch Committee will have its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Wednesday of every month. All interested citizens are invited to attend.

payments. RINELLA DISAGREED with Ostrom's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

Remember those bugs in my office? I think I know who's behind them.

The way we see it

Without evidence Scott's wiretap case is weak

During the closing days of this campaign, Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott has rehearsed an old set of charges that Gov. Daniel Walker wiretapped his office phones.

Scott's pronouncement included a charge that Walker conspired with organized crime figures to bug the office in exchange for a parole for one of their gangland comrades.

Scott first made the wiretap charge many months ago, but he failed to back up the allegations with any evidence.

He rekindled the issue last week with a few new twists and no more substance than the first time.

Making unsubstantiated charges is never acceptable, particularly when the accuser is the state's top legal officer. Scott should know better.

We have viewed Scott's performance and thus far have found it to be innovative and in the best interests of Illinois residents. Charges such as the one against Walker without the appropriate documentation can only tarnish that record.

If the attorney general has evidence that he has been illegally wiretapped by Walker operatives, organized crime or anyone else, he should take the evidence to the nearest U.S. Attorney for investigation.

If he doesn't, Scott would do well to drop this comment from his campaign and stick to more solid issues during the remaining weeks before the election.

Plan commission too valuable to allow absences

Since March 1975, there have been only two plan commission meetings at which the full membership of the Elk Grove Village plan commission has been present.

It represents a dismal attendance record in need of immediate attention by Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek, particularly in these times of burgeoning development plans which plan commission members must scrutinize and approve.

We realize that commissioners are not paid and volunteer many hours to their public jobs. But regardless, residents of Elk Grove deserve better representation on such an important commission.

Zettek himself has compounded the problem by failing to appoint a ninth member to a position which has been open for more than a year. He should make the appointment immediately.

The commission's lack of a full membership becomes important when coupled with the spotty attendance of at least two commissioners.

Of 37 meetings since March 1975, 17 had only five members present.

Since January 1975, Comr. Alvin Krasnow has attended 18 of a possible 41 meetings, or 44 per cent, and Comr. Leah Cummins has attended 24 meetings, a 58.5 per cent attendance record. The attendance of the other commissioners ranges from 69 per cent to 88 per cent.

Krasnow has suffered from health problems, and Mrs. Cummins has been out of the state on summer school study. Both seem legitimate reasons for absences, but when that is compounded with other members who occasionally miss meetings, the plan commission is conspicuously underrepresented.

Zettek and other village board members should evaluate the attendance, counsel the members who have not shown up, and determine whether their attendance records will improve.

If not, they should be replaced, for there must be more energetic Elk Grove Village residents who could make valuable contributions to the development of that community.

They could use you as a volunteer if you've got some time to spare

Now that fall has arrived, the children are back in school, vacation memories are packed away and it's time to start another season. Have you thought to include in your busy schedule a tiny pocket of time devoted to helping someone? So many of us have focused our energies on school, or jobs, or hobbies and pastimes — all good and necessary to our way of life.

But how about an hour a week to give to a young girl whose way of life depends on others?

Tierney is 11 years old, a dark haired, bright eyed girl who loves poetry, silly jokes and her dog, Moses. She would love to be back in school instead of doing her book work at home, but she can't. Tierney has cerebral palsy; she was born without the muscle control you and I take for granted. She cannot walk by herself, or feed herself, or even talk, though her thoughts must be aching to be spoken.

Tierney has been working with the Doman Delacato patterning program for the last 15 months and has made fantastic progress thanks to scores of volunteers who have worked with her. But the program must continue at full force if she is to achieve any degree of independence. Intellectually, Tierney is capable of learning from and contributing to the world, but she must be physically able to meet it.

Can your need to help another human being find Tierney's need to be helped? Housewife, businessman or woman, teen, retiree: if you can donate one hour a week (you choose the most convenient time) please call me for more details.

Words of praise

I would like to extend a heartfelt thanks to The Herald and to all the people who donated baby items for our Baby Boutique in September. It was a great success for which we are very pleased.

The Concerned Parents Organization for High Risk Infants (C.P.O.) is a young group devoted to helping parents of a critically ill child through the weeks and months of having their child in Lutheran General's High Risk Nursery. It's a painful time for many of them and who can better help them than those of us who have been there ourselves.

The funds we earned will benefit the High Risk Nursery and for this we thank each and everyone who took the time to donate items or came to the sale.

Worthy of note

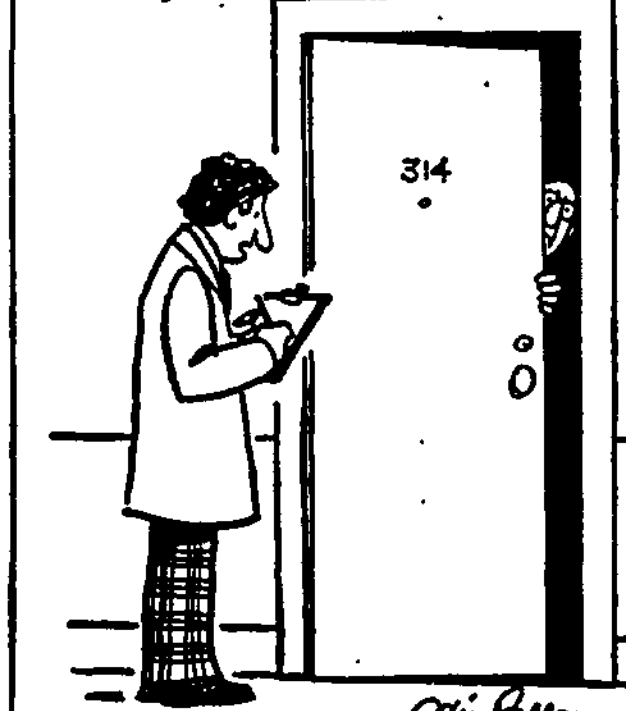

My husband and I wish to thank the wonderful man who stopped his van and helped us Monday, Oct. 4, about 8 p.m. in front of Sondag Chevrolet.

Although he was headed in the opposite direction, he stopped, turned on his blinkers and helped my husband get our car started. We had no lights; the battery was dead and without him we could have been in an accident too.

It's nice to know there are people like him who take time out of their busy day to help others and refuse pay. Since we don't know his name, this is the only way we have to thank him and let the readers know, "May good health be with you always, whoever you are."

Editors not taking any chances

by TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON — What did Earl Butz say? Although he was forced to resign his cabinet position for making a racial remark, the remark itself has not been printed nor repeated in the media.

There have been censored versions of the comment, written in a code which asks the public to fill in the blanks, but most Americans still do not know precisely what forced the Agriculture secretary from office.

Similarly, many Americans are still confused about Jimmy Carter's remarks to Playboy magazine. News accounts say he talked bluntly, using earthy language, including a word meaning intercourse, but editorial tradition prevented much of the media from being entirely specific.

And then there was the Affairer Rockefeller. Last month the vice president raised his middle finger in salute to a rowdy clutch of hecklers, and the public, forever protected against this kind of realism, was told the maneuver was a "gesture," a "dirty gesture," or in one notable case, a "dirty Italian gesture linked to fornication."

Don't look for real truth here, either. This column is tied to the same heavy ethic as the rest of the popular print industry: Everything is fit to print save dirty words. One breaks the rule at his peril, to be sure; last year an editor in Dayton, Ohio, published a grand jury transcript which included a four-letter word meaning collus, and the outcry was so great he quickly resigned.

At that, the situation is far better than it used to be in the business. For instance it was not until red-baller Joe McCarthy began to release his arrows that the word "homosexual" was allowed in the daily prints. And the word "rape" was kept out even longer, editors using "violate," or sometimes "ravage," to describe such crimes. "Sodomy," as I understand it, is still a no-no for many police reporters.

The logic behind all this has been fueled by benevolence. Also economics. The popular media reports to a nonselective audience: unlike Hustler, which is bought by customers for one reason, newspapers and the electronic media are purchased for another, and never the twain shall meet. When the content of a "family newspaper" falls below an imaginary line, e.g. four-letter words, subscriptions can be lost.

And so in cases where the vice president gives the bird to the rowdies, or a cabinet secretary says black people enjoy defecating under preheated conditions, the public gets the word without the words. When an 18-year-old lad is shot in the eye in Vietnam, we say it plain, but we print Richard Nixon's transcripts with deleted obscenities.

It is of course not as if the newspaper-television industry are otherwise paragons of morality. Some kind of advance sex education can be acquired from the papers these days simply by reading the ads for the X- and R-rated movies: "Hot and Horny," or "She went all the way but he wanted more." As for television, the same networks that will not reveal Jimmy Carter's language regularly project explicit acts of murder and sadism into the homes of eager viewers.

Hence there is an appalling sort of hypocrisy here. In Washington, as example, the news-reading public has recently been treated to a grisly photograph of three assassins being hanged in Syria, a front-page feature describing the terror of a young prison inmate waiting in his bed for a homosexual assault, and advertisement photographs of a go-go dancer who is reported to have the largest mammary glands in America. And yet what did Earl Butz say? That has been censored.

Benevolence or no, censorship in any name is risky. What Butz said was wrong, but not so terrible as the imagination may perceive. One recalls that the response to the Nixon transcript deletions was ignorantly exaggerated, that it became sport to guess what words were omitted, that in fact the complete transcripts showed the language to be generally mild and so the ex-President had been done a disservice.

What is obscenity anyway? As Samuel Butler wrote, "Cannibalism is moral in cannibal country." Surely starvation and war and disease are obscene. One might wish for a time when the media would run out of filth to reflect; until then none of it should fairly be expurgated.

BIG BUSINESS

"This place is no picnic."

UAW workers approve Ford pact

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers Union announced late Tuesday that 170,000 Ford Motor Co. workers who have been on strike for 28 days have narrowly approved a new three-year contract.

Some 25,000 skilled tradesmen, who threatened to scuttle the agreement because of dissatisfaction with several provisions, passed it by a 489-vote margin, the union said. Slightly more than 17,000 skilled workers voted.

The skilled trades vote was 8,957 in favor and 8,468 opposed.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock and UAW Vice President Ken Bannan said that out of the 145,000 production workers, the vote to approve the agreement was 35,192 in favor and 22,025 opposed.

A MAJORITY OF each group had to ratify the agreement to gain final approval.

Woodcock and Bannan said that workers at bargaining units "that have reached agreement with Ford on local bargaining issues will be returning to work."

Four of 19 assembly plants would begin operations Wednesday and Thursday. The start-up at all 102 Ford facilities in 22 states will depend on local contract negotiations.

THE NOW-RATIFIED Ford contract becomes the basic industry agreement that will have to be matched by General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors.

The union did not indicate immediately which company would be its next "target."

The company and the union still have to work out local agreements at 29 of 99 bargaining units. That includes six of 19 assembly plants and a number of key manufacturing plants.

Without these local agreements, on such issues as washrooms, parking lots, cafeterias and production standards, to supplement the national agreement, Ford will not restart the assembly lines.

IN THE WAGE package, the workers won a 3 per cent annual increase, plus 20 cents an hour in the first year and continuation of the cost-of-living plan that generated $1.14 an hour for workers in the past three years.

To gain the approval of its skilled tradesmen, they were given an extra 20 to 25 cents an hour on top of the general wage package.

Other improvements included a one-time payment of up to $600 for the 38,000 retirees, a vision care and hearing aid plan and improved financing of the Supplemental Unemployment Benefits fund that gives laid off workers up to 95 per cent of their regular pay.

Tax brackets can confuse new investor

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

I've been studying an investment proposal from a major stock brokerage firm and found it to be misleading or at least confusing to a novice investor.

The proposal was comparing two plans: their own, which offered a tax-sheltered return of 7.5 per cent per year, and another which offered a taxable 10 per cent return per year. The 10 per cent deal was based on the assumption that the investor was in the 50 per cent tax bracket. The column of numbers purported to prove that the firm's tax-sheltered investment was a far better deal than the seemingly higher yielding one.

At issue was a one-time investment of $30,000. The proposal showed that the 10 per cent deal would return $3,000 per year to the investor, but half of that would go to Uncle Sam, thus leaving the investor with only $1,500 to go back to work for him. That's because of the 50 per cent tax bracket.

The 7.5 per cent tax-sheltered deal, on the other hand, would return $2,250 to the investor, all of which could go back to work for him. The compounding effect over the years made quite a difference in the proposal. Eventually some taxes would have to be paid in this form of annuity, but theoretically not until after retirement when the taxpayer would be in a lower tax bracket.

For reference, let's look at a segment of the federal tax rate schedule for married taxpayers filing joint returns.

Taxable Income	That not over	Pay	of the amount over
Over $36,000	$40,000	$10,340 plus 45%	$36,000
$40,000	$44,000	$12,140 plus 48%	$40,000
$44,000	$52,000	$14,080 plus 50%	$44,000

This means that a taxpayer whose taxable income (after deductions and exemptions) is $40,000 will pay $12,140 in federal income taxes. A taxable income of $41,000 will result in taxes of $12,620 ($12,140 plus 48 per cent of $1,000, or $480, equals $12,620). In the jargon of tax-land, this taxpayer is in the so-called 48 per cent bracket.

But as some simple arithmetic shows, he is not really paying 48 per cent of his taxable income in taxes. A taxable income of $40,000 means taxes of $12,140, or about 30 per cent of the taxable income. A tax of $14,080 represents about 32 per cent of the taxable income of $44,000, which is otherwise referred to as the 50 per cent bracket.

If an investor's taxable income goes from $44,000 to $47,000 as a result of a $3,000 return on a given investment, he will have to pay an extra $1,500 in taxes. But I submit that it's misleading to attribute all of that extra tax to the one investment. Considering all of his income as pooled into a single kitty, the actual percentage he'll pay in taxes on the total is only about 33 per cent.

'Drought' corn crop sets a record

The Agriculture Dept. Tuesday estimated the drought-ridden 1976 corn crop at a record 5.865 billion bushels, down 27 million bushels from last month's estimate of 5.892 billion bushels, but still 2 per cent above last year's record. A new estimate of soybean production put that crop at 1.250 billion bushels, down from 1.274 billion bushels last month and 18 per cent below last year. Wheat prospects indicated slightly less than last year's record crop. Corn prospects are a major key to future retail food prices because the grain is the chief raw material for farms producing meat, poultry and milk. The new forecast, based on Oct. 1 conditions, left the crop 98 million bushels above last year's 5.767 billion bushel record.

UAW, Deere talks resume

Contract talks between representatives of the United Auto Workers and Deere and Co. resumed in Moline Tuesday, the first time negotiators met since talks abruptly ended Oct. 2. Some 27,000 workers in six states walked out Oct. 1 during negotiations, which were to set a pattern for the farm implement industry.

New can recycling center

A new aluminum can recycling center will open today at Town and Country Distributors, 1325 Chase Ave., Elk Grove Village. Louis Weiss, service center manager for Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Center in Addison, said an open house will be held at 11 a.m. today at the facility. Town and Country Distributors, managed by Jack Rohner, is among eight Miller Brewing Co. beer distributors in the Chicago area, which sponsor similar centers. The Elk Grove Village outlet will be open from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Payment is made at the rate of 13 cents a pound for aluminum cans.

Gould record sales, earnings

Gould Inc., Rolling Meadows, Tuesday announced record sales and earnings for the first quarter ended Sept. 30, the first full quarter following Gould's acquisition of I-T-E Imperial Corp. Earnings per share rose 32 per cent to 79 cents compared to 60 cents a year earlier. Sales increased 18 per cent to $346.9 million compared to $298.7 million reported by Gould and I-T-E for their respective quarters a year earlier. Net earnings for the quarter reached $10.2 million compared to the earlier $11.3 million total.

Stocks continue slump; Dow drops another 8.47

NEW YORK (UPI) — The market's continuing slump, along with evidence the economic rebound has lost its momentum, drove prices lower in quiet trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which plummeted 11.56 points Monday, extended the loss by 8.47 points to 312.35, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 329.63.

In the last 12 sessions, the closely followed Dow has plunged 76.94 points.

WALL STREET observers said investors were disheartened by the failure of the Dow to mount a drive above the 300 resistance zone, considered the lower end of an eight-month trading range until the index broke through the mark last Wednesday.

The latest rout was broad-based. The NYSE common stock index fell 0.45 to 53.87 and the price of a Big Board common share decreased by 28 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter issues, was off 0.83 to 100.81.

Declines held a better than two-to-one lead over advances, 988 to 308, among the 1,889 issues crossing the tape.

Volume amounted to 18,210,000 shares, compared with 14,630,000 shares exchanged Monday during the quiet Columbus Day session. Prices closed lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange, where the price of an average share fell 9 cents. The Amex market value index was down 0.78 at 97.96. Volume totaled 1,780,000 shares, against 1,710,000 shares Monday.

"America's Largest" Antiques Show and Sale

Arlington Park

Arlington Heights, Ill. 30 Miles Northwest of Downtown Chicago

Oct. 14, 15, 16 & 17, 1976

Thurs., Fri. & Sat. 12 Noon - 10 p.m. Sun. 12 Noon - 6 p.m.

Last April over 15,000 people attended the first antique show & sale at Arlington Park, one of the best attended antique shows in America. This is one of the most diversified antique shows in the United States. You must see the tremendous amount and variety of antiques to believe it. Many of the nation's most distinguished dealers from over 30 states will be at this fabulous show. The dealers are selected for honesty, integrity, and large stocks of quality antiques. Many of these dealers do not exhibit at other shows in this area. The show floor is 900 feet long and 150 feet wide. This is the largest sale of antiques in America, valued at over $10 million.

The October antiques show & sale is bigger and better than the last show with many different exhibitors. There is no other show that can compare to this sensational event with something of interest to everyone. Please don't forget. Arlington Park is where the largest quality antiques show & sale in America is held and you are invited to attend.

"IT IS GOOD to look into your eyes," pronounced the chief. "Do they see what is before you? It is clean. It is beautiful." Not American Indian by birth, Niyoka changed her name (Gayle) and adopted the Indian way of life 10 years ago. She carried a sheaf of feathers and grain. The groom's father is a Yacqui Indian from Texas, his mother from the Zapoteca tribe of Mexico.

WHILE PERFORMING the ceremony Chief Little Eagle of the Wisconsin Dells beat his tom-tom and held wing feathers from an eagle, the closest animal to God. "We do not worship idols," he explained to the guests. "We pray to God above us. We are all God's children."

COUPLE'S WEDDING rings are set with native American stones. "No African diamonds," noted the officiating chief. The exchange of rings lent a modern day touch to the service.

Couple celebrate their marriage in American Indian tradition

by MARIANNE SCOTT

"Love is what it's all about," declared Roger Little Eagle, a Sioux war chief who performed the American Indian wedding ceremony uniting Niyoka Chupich and John G. Lopez.

It was a bit chilly for Indian summer, but the late afternoon sun shone warmly on friends and family the couple had asked to share their love and joy on this special day.

Setting for the service in "God's out-of-doors" last Saturday was the Deer Grove Forest Preserves, Palatine. Niyoka and John, who had invited 500 guests, led the procession down to a deep clearing where Chief Little Eagle waited at the edge of a small lake. The service began with the beating of his tom-tom and a brief chant.

THE CHIEF, WHO translated the service into English "for the benefit of the new immigrants," explained that the American Indian wedding does not include "obey," but stresses love, honor and integrity, which is what our country needs today.

Little Eagle said he found it gratifying that in this Bicentennial year, a young couple with their young one, reaching together in love, wished to give their hearts to the past. "Our nation is celebrating many things, but God gave us eyes to learn from the mistakes and hurts of the past."

"As we stand here on Mother Earth," said the chief, "there isn't much left of the preserves." He spoke of the 25,000 years when the land belonged to the Indians and "waters ran clear."

"NOW OUR WATERS are polluted," he accused. "Earth is our Mother; we are her guardians. We can borrow from Mother Earth but we can't keep taking and taking."

The service did not include the old Indian custom of an exchange of gifts (guns, handiwork, food) between the families of the couple. The chief explained that it wasn't the gifts but the treasure of love and closeness in giving that was important. "Things are nothing. Things are made, broken and gone. Maybe that's why we lost the country — things," he commented.

The service did include the traditional smoking of the Indian pipe (lit with a modern day match) which was passed to the bride and groom, their attendants and their families.

"Tobacco is one of God's greatest gifts — not to be abused as it is today. Tobacco is a sacred plant to be used only for good times and relaxation. The smoke goes to God and we ask His blessing," said the chief.

THE COUPLE, attendants and families also shared a bowl of "the blood of Mother Earth (water) without which there is no life."

After the exchange of rings, Chief Little Eagle recited the Indian version of the 23rd Psalm, invited the guests to partake of the "meat of God's out-of-doors" and draped a single blanket over the shoulders of the newlyweds. "Go in peace," he directed.

John and Niyoka, followed by their bridal party and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Chupich, former Arlington Heights and Palatine residents who now live in Barrington, and Mr. and Mrs. Juan Lopez of Round Lake, led the entourage of friends back up the long hill to where the reception was held.

MATRON OF HONOR for the service was Niyoka's sister, Mona Posa of Wheeling. She and bridesmaids Maureen Browning, Palatine, Carol Funk, Mount Prospect, and Carrie Fornelli, Crystal Lake, wore natural deer skin gowns and carried sheaves of grain and turkey feathers tied with deer skin. Mrs. Chupich wore a chambray gown.

Best man was Greg Zender, Lake Zurich, and the bridegroom's other attendants were Frank Posa, Jessie Arce, Wauconda, and Sam Fornelli.

Niyoka studied at Palatine and Wheeling High Schools and graduated from Lake Zurich High. Next week she will begin studying interior design at Harper College. John, a graduate of Lake Zurich High, is employed by FRC Tire in Aptakisne.

The couple expect to make their home in Lotus Woods, a community of log cabins in Spring Grove on the Wisconsin border.

LEADING THE BUFFET line, Niyoka and John are served a feast of wild turkey with wild onion sauce, venison stew, buffalo stew, wild rice, Indian fry bread and maize (corn) catered by Chef Louis, right, of The Bakery in Chicago. Instead of wedding cake guests were served an Indian pudding of apples, corn meal and maple syrup. There was no "fire water" but plenty of champagne, wine and beer. The couple's daughter, Akomachi, 2½, like her parents, wears white deer skin.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Best way to lose pounds is slowly

I am 35 years old, 5 feet 6 and weigh 150 pounds. My blood pressure is 150 over 100. Also my husband is dying of cancer. Now my doctor says it's my few pounds overweight that is causing my blood pressure to be high.

I went on a 1000-calorie diet to lose weight and did lose a few pounds. But, I have to work hard and couldn't make it so I increased the diet to 1200 calories a day. Naturally I can't lose any more.

My doctor wants me to go to a psychologist and be hypnotized to see why I like to eat. I tried to explain it wasn't the desire to eat alone, but I needed food to have strength to do my job.

He said I would have to be down to 90 pounds to be weak from no food. Ever since I had this round with him the other day I have been very upset and my heart just pounds. I feel I have enough with a sick husband without this from him.

Your doctor is right in trying to help you lose weight as the best way to get your blood pressure down. However, I question the way you are trying to do it.

You should be able to lose weight slowly if you are on a real 1200-calorie diet and are reasonably active. And it is true that you will have a loss of energy on a diet too low in calories, whether or not you have already lost all your excess fat deposits. Anyone who has been on a severely restricted diet knows this. Loss of energy is par for the course. I agree it is hard to work and stay on a 1000-calorie diet very long.

May I suggest that you really stick religiously to a 1200 calorie diet and try to include at least 30 minutes of walking a day. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet constructed as a balanced 1200-calorie plan. Try it with some regular exercise and it will do the trick for you gradually.

Your pressure may be lower when you have less stress than you have now. Life situations are often a factor in increasing the blood pressure.

Others who want information on the Weight Losing Diet can send 50 cents for it. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y., 10019.

I have a friend who is losing his hair. He has to keep combing his hair different to cover up the thin places. I feel he should see a doctor and that he probably lacks some vitamins in his meals. He says he feels good and that it will grow back again. I will appreciate any information on this.

If a person is eating a balanced diet containing sufficient vitamins, taking additional vitamins will not prevent loss of hair.

It is true that a diet deficient in protein can lead to hair loss. Most people, however, get plenty of protein and usually far more than needed.

Premature hair loss can be associated with poor nutrition, any illness, and even occurs as a complication of pregnancy about three months after the baby is born. In these situations the baldness or hair loss is temporary.

Hereditary factors are a major reason for early baldness. In any case I agree that anyone who has excessive loss of hair at a young age should see a doctor, preferably a dermatologist since they specialize in disorders of the skin.

It is normal to lose about 70 hairs each day. The life cycle of a hair is from two to six years and the hair follicle has a resting period without hair for about three months.

Zucchini fans should welcome bread recipe

At last a recipe for zucchini bread! It comes from Kathy Bauda and is sure to be welcomed by all those so avid for zucchini in any form. It will be simpler to list the ingredients first, then provide the method. You'll need four cups coarsely shredded zucchini (do not shred in a blender), three cups all-purpose flour, two cups sugar, one and one-fourth cups vegetable oil, four beaten eggs, one tablespoon plus one teaspoon vanilla, one tablespoon ground cinnamon, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one and one-half teaspoons baking soda, one-half teaspoon baking powder and (optional) one cup chopped nuts. Heat oven to 325 degrees. Generously grease bottoms only of two 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pans. Blend all ingredients on low speed for one minute, scraping bowl constantly. Beat on medium speed for one minute. Pour into pans. Bake until wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean — 50 minutes to an hour. Cool 10 minutes, remove from pans, then let cool completely.

Dear Dorothy: Had an unusual accident, but it may happen to others. Sprayed one side of my face, including my eye, with yellow paint. I didn't expect much, but tried cold cream. To my surprise, it took off all the paint without a trace of irritation to the eye. —Barbara Arnold

Dear Dorothy: Discolored water came out of my steam iron and I immediately put the garment being ironed into a pan of cool water. Laundered, the stain came out. However, I have a shirt that this same thing happened to some time ago and the stain has never come out. Do you know what might be done with it? —Lane Britt

It's probably a rust stain. The simplest method is to use iron rust soap on it. It works on most materials, even carpeting. Just follow instructions.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.)

Sue Kulinski—

Brad Schwichtenberg

A Sept. 4 wedding resulted from a blind date arranged by friends of Sue Kulinski, daughter of the Walter Kulinskis, Mount Prospect, and Brad Schwichtenberg, Arlington Heights. Brad is the son of the Ray Schwichtenbergs, Golden Valley, Minn.

The 3 p.m. double ring ceremony took place in St. Emily Church in Mount Prospect.

Sue wore a lace-trimmed white peau de soie gown and fingertip veil edged in lace. She carried a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Pam Kulinski, the bride's sister-in-law from Streamwood. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Louise Bergman, Mundelein; Mrs. Debbie Schmalach, Milwaukee; Barb Minner, Chicago; and Mrs. Nanette Morris, Pekin, Ill.

THEY WORE matching gowns and capes of light blue knit jersey and held multicolored arrangements of daisies, roses and carnations. Flowers in their hair completed their ensembles.

The groom's 8-year-old cousin, Jodi Barry, St. Paul, Minn., was flower girl. She wore a dress similar to the bridesmaids' and carried a wicker basket filled with multicolored flowers.

Todd Kulinski, Sue's 6-year-old nephew from Streamwood, and Chad Beumer, Brad's 3-year-old cousin from Northfield, were ring bearers.

Brad Morris, Pekin, Ill., was best man, with the groom's brother, Dean; Sue's brother, Wayne; Randy Cordova, Rockford; and Cary Horvath, Blue Island, as groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Brad Schwichtenberg

A RECEPTION FOR 175 guests followed at the Mount Prospect VFW Hall. Sue and Brad then left for a week in Vail, Colo. Sue is a '71 graduate of Prospect High School, a '74 graduate of Harper College, and now a dental hygienist in Arlington Heights, where the couple now lives.

Brad, a '73 graduate of the University of Illinois, is division manager for Hussman Refrigeration in Lombard.

Weddings

Sharon Benson—Casey Nelson

The Presbyterian Church in Metlakatla, Alaska, was the setting of the Sept. 9 wedding of Sheryl Ray Benson, daughter of the John Bensons, Palatine, and Casey D. Nelson Jr., son of the Casey Nelsons of Metlakatla.

A reception for 350 followed the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

Sheryl attended Fremd High School and Sheldon Jackson College in Sitka, Alaska. She is employed at the municipal offices in Metlakatla and Casey works at a lumber sawmill there.

The bride wore a Brussels lace gown and a lace cap and veil. She wore tiny white flowers in her hair and carried white roses and baby's breath.

HER MATRON of honor, Patricia Dams, Metlakatla, wore a powder blue gown and a wide brimmed hat. She carried a white bouquet. Bridesmaids Debbie Demmert, Ketchikan, Alaska, and Mercy Nelson, sister of the groom, were identically attired.

Flower girls were Tanya and Karen Eaton, Metlakatla, dressed in pink and blue flowered chiffon, and ring bearer was Clarence Nelson, British Columbia, Canada.

Best man was James Slaughter, and ushers were John Nelson, brother of the groom, and Larry Atkinson, all of Metlakatla.

Fall brings new hair fashions to Coiffure da Colino

Starting with the "Nova Cut," a short tailored look with the adaptability to enhance any facial structure. Then there's the "Tennille," the mid-length cut with extra volume to give your hair that free swinging feeling. "Olivia," is another mid-length look with the hair blown away from the face to produce a soft-framed finish. The "Roma" has the look of today's blend of gentle contrast of tone-on-tone to create the beautiful multi-facets of lights reflecting thru your hair.

Lawyer not likely to change will

Dear Perplexed,

Your friend's employer promised to remember her in his will, but now that he's dead, she has not been notified about any provisions in it for her, especially a house that they had discussed, and she's wondering why.

No lawyer would be foolish enough to put his reputation, career or freedom (he could go to jail, you know) on the line for a client as you suggest the wife's lawyer might have done. A lawyer isn't likely to change the deceased's will because the testator's wife asked him to, nor fail to notify the beneficiaries — not for any amount of money.

Average citizens are not aware of all the intricacies of the law, and because a lawyer cannot explain them to a client (unless the latter is a lawyer), that client is suspicious and distrustful. Yet is a doctor expected to explain medical scientific procedure to a patient? Any specialized field of endeavor is beyond comprehension unless a person has the background to understand it. And sometimes the accusations against lawyers are absolutely ludicrous!

Women and children first

by Julie Martocchio

IN THIS INSTANCE, too, the wife would be jeopardizing her rights to the will if she did anything to alter it after her husband's death.

There are many reasons why promises should be in writing and your friend's dilemma proves the truth of that statement. I suspect that her employer either forgot or did not intend to keep his word.

But there is a simple procedure to find out whether that is true. Your friend may go to the probate court and look up the will. Wills are filed there and they are open to the public to read.

Dear L.Y.,

Shame on you for hating your fiancé's cat! A dog may be a man's best friend, but that doesn't exclude cats. If you want to keep your dog after you're married, why can't he keep his cat? You don't expect me to agree with you when you say his affection for a cat is a reflection on his masculinity, do you? How would you feel if he harbored the feeling that keeping your dog and preferring it to a cat reflected on your lack of femininity — and worse?

IN ANCIENT TIMES, Egyptians worshiped cats, and they had a law against killing one, the punishment being death, even if the killing was accidental! In those days, the law was written by men and I wouldn't say Egyptian men were exactly stasies, would you?

So what if the cat reminds you of his ex-wife? It's not the cat's fault. Better get the cat and dog situation straightened out before you wed, or that's the way you'll be fighting afterward.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martocchio's law information is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 226, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Learn to Super Sew.

After 8 easy, inexpensive lessons you will have made at least:

- One T-shirt
- One pair of perfect-fit pants
- Three fashion tops
- One skirt
- One sweater
- One suit jacket
- One swimsuit

Using Ann Person's unique sewing methods, you sew in a fraction of the time of ordinary sewing. You'll learn to fit and to design. And it's so simple. The classes are fun — like a special club meeting. You learn. But you love it.

You can make it. We will show you how.

Bazaars

wreaths, raffia dolls, advent calendars, hand-painted decorations and Christmas ornaments is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 23, by Arlington Heights Area Alumnae of Kappa Kappa Gamma. The bazaar will be open from 10 a.m. to noon at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez.

Proceeds will go to Northwest Community Hospital. Last year's donation to the hospital from fund-raising activities was $1,000.

AAUW seeks used books

Books of all kinds — hard cover, paperback, fiction, non-fiction, texts, National Geographic, Reader's Digest, American Heritage, manuals, children's — plus records and sheet music are being collected by Arlington Heights Area Branch of the American Association of University Women for its annual used book sale at Randhurst Nov. 5, 6, 7.

All proceeds go to a national fellowships fund and a Harper scholarship sponsored each year. This year's Harper recipient is Mrs. Louise Hacker who is enrolled in the nursing program.

The book depot at Recreation Park, Douglas and Miner Streets, Arlington Heights, is open every Tuesday and Thursday between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. Books may be dropped off at the garage to the east of the park pool. Arrangements for pickup can be made with Sarah Born, 259-6378, or Jean Wittkoff, 255-3108.

Correction

In last Wednesday's Suburban Living story on Gilbert Ruiz, who developed a pelvic restrainer for infants at Holy Family Hospital, his wife was incorrectly identified as Judy. Her correct name is Nancy. The Herald apologizes to Mrs. Ruiz for this error.

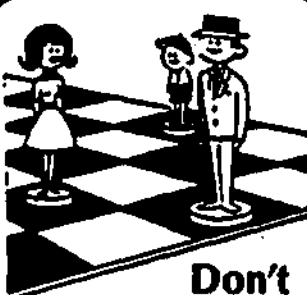

Clubs ask craftsmen to rent fair booths

Three area groups are inviting craftsmen to show and sell their wares at craft fairs coming up in November. All request handmade items only.

Schaumburg Woman's Club will sponsor a "Crafty Capers Christmas Bazaar" Nov. 13 at St. Peter Lutheran School. Display spaces at various prices are available. Information 829-1939 or 894-0504.

Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Welcome Wagon Club is hosting a craft bazaar Nov. 20 at Vogel's Barn, Hoffman Estates. The entry fee is 10 percent of gross sales. Information 822-7129.

Woodfield ORT is seeking participants for its second annual arts and crafts fair on Nov. 20. Information 884-1015 after 6 p.m.

Obituaries

Maria S. Ahbe

Services for Maria Schafer Ahbe, 80, of Des Plaines for 34 years, will be at 11 a.m. Friday in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

She died Tuesday at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was the owner of Maria Schafer's Music Store, Des Plaines, from 1921 until her retirement in 1968; and was a member of Des Plaines Women's Club.

Survivors include her husband, Howard M., who was mayor of Des Plaines from 1937 to 1941; a son, Donald Ahbe; brothers, Mathew, Anthony and George Schafer; and sisters, Anna Donke, Pauline Krause and Alvin Dawson.

Visitation will be from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday in Oehler Funeral Home. Memorials may be made to First Church of Christ Scientist, Des Plaines.

Deaths elsewhere

ALBERT H. AHRENS, 78, of Woodstock, a former resident of Des Plaines and McHenry, died Tuesday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was a retired farmer. He is survived by a daughter, Marion Lindemann of Des Plaines; sons, Richard of Palatine and Albert Ahrens; seven grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; brothers, John, Edward and George Ahrens; and sister, Anna Babcock of Des Plaines.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Thursday in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, with burial in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights. Visitation will be from 2 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in Oehler Funeral Home.

LINDA M. CAIRO, 29, of Crystal Lake, was dead on arrival Monday at McHenry Hospital, McHenry, apparently from injuries sustained after being struck by a car in front of her home. She is survived by her husband, Robert; brothers, Elmer Barnes of Palatine, Donald and Robert Barnes, both of Schaumburg; and parents, Elmer and Mildred Barnes.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in St. Marcelline Church, 820 S. Springguth Rd., Schaumburg, with burial in St. Joseph Cemetery, River Grove. Visitation will be from 2 to 9:30 p.m. today in Ahgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 330 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg. Family requests masses appreciated.

ARTHUR R. WOLF, 32, of Strongsville, Ohio, a former resident of Palatine, was dead on arrival Friday at Southwest General Hospital, Middleburg Heights, Ohio, apparently from injuries sustained in a car-train accident in Berea, Ohio. A 1971 graduate of Michigan State University, he was employed as a chemist for Fosco Mimsop Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Survivors include his parents, Theobald and Alice Wolf of St. Simons Island, Ga., formerly of Palatine; brothers, David and James Wolf; and grandmother, Mercy Iddings.

A memorial service was Monday in the Jardine Funeral Home, Strongsville, Ohio. There will be a second memorial service at a later date in St. Simons Island, Ga.

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

Taste-science breakthrough gives low tar MERIT the flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

By locating certain flavor-rich ingredients in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have disproven the theory that cigarette flavor depends on the amount of tar that goes with it.

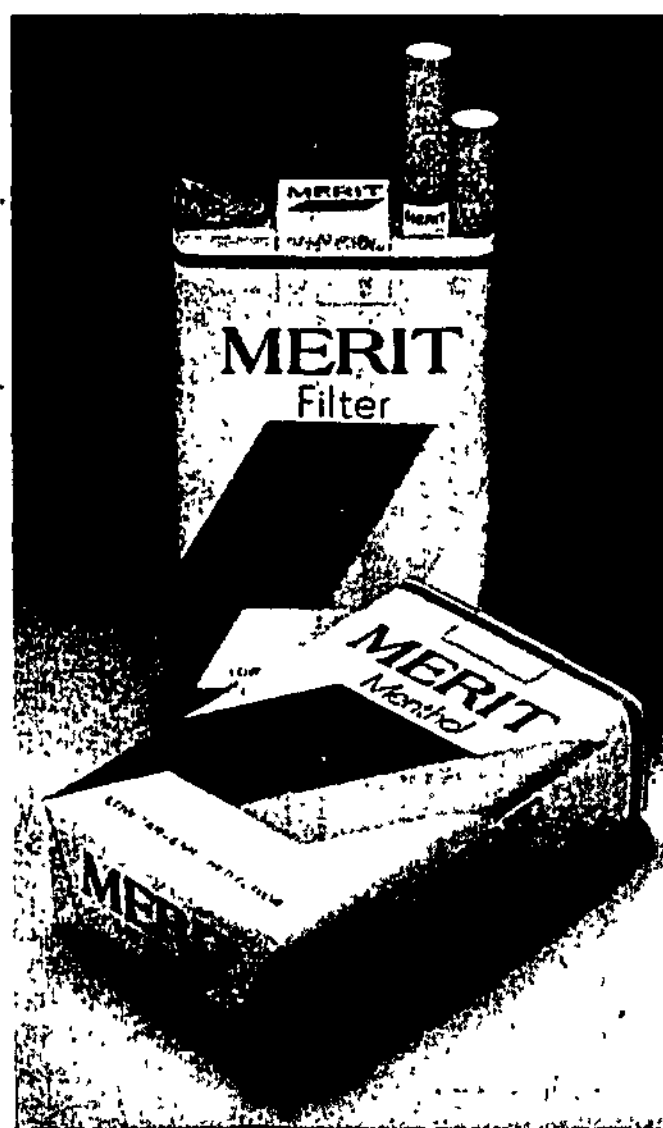

They've discovered how to pack flavor—unprecedented flavor—into a cigarette that delivers one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.' It's extra flavor, natural flavor, and only MERIT has it.

9 mg. "tar," 0.7 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Tests Verify Taste

In taste tests involving thousands of cigarette smokers like yourself, MERIT was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than current low tar leaders.

What's really startling is that these brands have up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette. MERIT. Incredible smoking satisfaction at only 9 mg. tar.

Awesome Reds take pennant with style

CINCINNATI'S TONY Perez is out at second base after Johnny Bench hit to Philadelphia's Larry Bowa in playoff action Tuesday. Bowa flipped to second baseman Dave Cash for the force at second and Bench was doubled up at first. The Reds won, 7-6, to march into the World Series.

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "Oh, can they play," Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson huffed and puffed as he scampered into the Reds' locker room. "Oh, can they play."

Anderson was almost in a daze immediately after his ball club had rallied from a 6-4 deficit in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday to whip Philadelphia 7-6 for a three-game sweep of the National League playoffs.

Not only was Anderson dazzled by the comeback — "Oh, can they play," he kept repeating — but the white-haired skipper admitted he didn't expect his team to win the game.

"Let's be honest," he said. "We don't live in a dream world. I'm surprised we tied it. But when it got 6-6, I knew this thing was over."

It got to be 6-6 thanks to back-to-back homers by George Foster and Johnny Bench in the ninth inning.

"All I did was go up to get a hit," said Foster, who homered to left. "But I was really aggressive at the plate, and when I hit it, I knew it was gone. I didn't know how far it was going, but I knew it was gone."

Bench followed with another shot over the left field wall, and it reminded the slugging catcher of 1972 when he hit a dramatic ninth-inning homer in the fifth game of the playoffs to pave the way for a comeback win over Pittsburgh.

"In '72, I don't think I realized how big that homer was for quite awhile," said Bench, clutching a bottle of champagne in the jubilant Reds' locker room. "But I knew right away what this one meant.

"When George went up to bat in the ninth I patted him on the rump and said, 'Let's go.' He did, and then I knew I was on the block. I just wanted to do something awfully bad. Let me tell you, it's some kind of thrill."

After the solo homers by Foster and Bench had tied it, Ken Griffey delivered the winning RBI on a high-chopping infield hit that Philadelphia's first baseman Bobby Tolan couldn't handle.

"I just wanted to make contact," said Griffey. "I saw he bobbled it and I made it to first base the fastest I've ever made it."

Anderson refused to say if he would rather play Kansas City or the New York Yankees in the World Series, opening here Saturday, but he issued a warning to both clubs.

"Either the Yankees or Kansas City could beat us, but if they do, they will ache so much when they do that they won't feel relaxed," said the man who led the Reds to a World Series win over the Boston Red Sox just a year ago.

Ron Reed sat slumped next to a soft drink machine in the losing Phillies dressing room, his head buried in his lap. If there were tears in his eyes, he wasn't going to show them.

Reed gave up two homers — back-to-back by Foster and Bench — and that allowed the Reds to tie the score in the ninth inning before going on to beat the Phillies five batters later.

"There is no way you can blame anybody on this club for that loss but me," said the distraught Phillies reliever, his eyes misty and his voice quivering. "It was as plain and simple as that. I let Foster get to me because I hung the pitch and an eight-year veteran doesn't do that. Bench just hit a high fastball."

Tommy Underwood, at 22, eleven years younger than Reed, was more composed even though it was his walk to Germaine which set up the eventual winning run.

"There's no excuse for not throwing strikes," said Underwood. "I tried to aim the ball. I just didn't do the job."

Meanwhile, Reed sat quietly by his locker room cubicle while reporters drifted by and asked him to rehash those disastrous two pitches. Somebody asked him what he would be thinking about all winter long.

"I think," said Reed, "it's safe to say I'll be thinking about a hanging slider."

Corsair golfers capture ESC conference meet again

A one-stroke margin allowed Carmel to retain their conference golf crown Tuesday, the Corsairs just barely edging hosting St. Victor for top team honors at the Suburban Catholic East tourney.

Carmel slipped past the Lions 315-316 while four other schools trailed at a distance. A Corsair golfer also came up with individual honors at the Rob Roy layout.

Leading the way for Victor was Jack Patterson. His 78 tied for third on the medalist list. Tim Beatty and Bob Cantieri turned in 79s, Mark Brehm carded an 80, Chuck Lynch posted an 83 and Bill Hickey and Paul Adams finished up at 86 and 85 respectively.

Marist finished third in the team standings with a 329 followed by Notre Dame (331), St. Patrick (350) and St. Joseph (422).

Coach Ken Peck's frosh-soph Lion unit turned the tables on Carmel but Notre Dame turned out to be the team to watch. The Dons won the sophomore meet with a 325 while Victor had a 335, Carmel a 335 and St. Pats and Marist notched 367s.

Bill Donnelley paced the Lion cause with an 82.

Baseball board to meet tonight

Ellis survives rocky 1st inning

Yanks move closer to pennant

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees of old would have been proud of the current New York Yankees Tuesday night when they brought post-season baseball back to "The Home of Champions" for the first time since 1964.

Staging a flash rally as in "the old days," the Yankees scored three runs in the sixth inning to beat the Kansas City Royals 5-3 and take a 2-1 lead in the American League playoffs. They need one victory in the two remaining scheduled games in New York to win their first pennant since 1964.

Graig Nettles' tie-breaking single and a run-scoring double by Elliott Maddox were the big blows of the sixth inning.

Deck Ellis, who received credit for the victory with ninth-inning relief help from Sparky Lyle, didn't feel all that elated over the triumph, however.

"On a 10-point scale, I rate my performance four," he said. "I haven't pitched in a week-and-a-half and I wasn't that sharp."

"They just kept hitting the ball at people," he said. "And that's why we won."

A surprise 17-game winner during the regular season after being acquired in a winter trade from the Pittsburgh Pirates, Ellis was tagged for three runs in the first inning but settled down and pitched a superb six-hitter for eight innings. He allowed only three hits after the first inning and faced only 22 batters from the second through the eighth innings before being relieved at the start of the ninth by Lyle.

A crowd of 34,000, which included Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, saw the Yankees cut the Royals' early lead to 3-2 with two out in the fourth inning when Lou Piniella doubled and Chris Chambliss homered into the right field bleachers. Both blows came off Andy Hassler who nevertheless carried a 3-2 lead into the Yankees' sixth.

Then the Yankees staged their flash rally just as they did so often in the days of Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio, Mantle and all the rest when Yankee Stadium was the Home of Champions.

Roy White walked and Thurman Munson doubled to start the sixth and reliever Marty Pattin walked pinch-hitter Carlos May, filling the bases. Chambliss hit into a force play off Tom Hall, enabling White to score the Yankees' third run, and Nettles followed with a clean single to center field to put the Yankees ahead 4-3. Maddox followed with his double to make the score 5-3.

Lyle gave the Yankees' fans some anxious moments when he walked George Brett to open the ninth but he retired John Mayberry and Hal McRae on fly balls and got pinch-hitter Dave Nelson to hit into a game-ending force out. Lyle received credit for a save with Ellis picking up the second playoff victory of his career.

The Royals started out in the first inning like they were going to chase Ellis back to Pittsburgh.

Jim Wohlford walked and stole second base to start the inning. Al Cowens struck out but Brett singled home Wohlford and went to third on Mayberry's single to left. Brett scored the second run on McRae's sacrifice fly and Tom Poquette doubled past first base to make the score 3-0.

Hassler allowed a leadoff single to Mickey Rivers and had a one-hitter until Piniella doubled with one out in the fourth.

Bugner KO's Dunn

LONDON — Joe Bugner won the British, European and Commonwealth heavyweight boxing titles Tuesday when he knocked out defending champion Richard Dunn at 2:14 of the first round.

Bugner took the fight to Dunn and immediately floored the champion with a right hand in the opening seconds. Dunn rose to his feet, but came under a tremendous barrage of punches and went down again for a brief count.

Bugner tore into the attack. Dunn tried to tie him up but Bugner was getting through. Dunn's face was a vivid red as Bugner rained home punches.

Then Dunn went down again for the full count.

Dunn suddenly holsted himself up as referee Harry Gibbs spread his arms. He even looked surprised that the count had finished. He bumped into Gibbs before crashing to the canvas again.

Bugner, who previously held the championships, jumped from his stool like a man possessed at the bell and before the fight was barely 10 seconds old, Dunn was dumped on the seat of his pants in his own corner by a vicious right uppercut for a count of eight.

Wolverines near unanimous choice

NEW YORK — The University of Michigan, displaying the most potent offense in the nation, stands out as a near unanimous choice Tuesday for the No. 1 spot in the weekly football ratings of United Press International.

The Wolverines, who have outscored their opponents 234-51 in running up a 5-0 record, received 41 of 42 first-place ballots from the UPI Board of Coaches. The only dissenter voted them second, giving Michigan 419 of a possible 420 points.

Pittsburgh, also boasting a 5-0 record, received the other first place nomination and was second in the voting with 348 points. However, the Panthers already have lost two starting quarterbacks this season, first Robert Haygood and most recently Matt Cavanaugh last Saturday against Louisville.

The best advance of the week was made by Texas Tech, which vaulted eight notches to No. 10 after a 27-16 upset of Texas A&M last Saturday. It was the third victory for the unbeaten Red Raiders.

Also moving into the top 10 was Ohio State following a one-week absence. The Buckeyes, with a 3-1-1 record, are ninth.

Brock will be player-coach in '77

ST. LOUIS — In his first act as new manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Vern Rapp said Tuesday that Lou Brock has agreed to act as player-coach next season.

"He will be utilized in the outfield department and also the running department," Rapp said.

The announcement came at a news conference called to introduce Rapp. August A. Busch Jr., president of the Cardinals and board chairman of Anheuser-Busch brewery, and General Manager Bing Devine attended the meeting.

Rapp, 48, also said Mo Mazzali, a longtime scout in the Cardinal organization, will serve as batting coach.

Rapp, a minor-league manager since 1955, acknowledged his limited experience in the National League and said Brock would help him get acquainted with the various players.

"I know that I'm coming into a situation where I'm not acquainted with the league and Lou's knowledge is going to be very important," said Rapp, who added that the coaching job would not interfere with Brock's playing time.

Other news in the sports world...

Three Chicago Bears are on this week's injury list — wide receivers Ron Shanklin and Bo Rafter and guard Noah Jackson. All three, though, are expected to play in Sunday's game against the L.A. Rams.

Five-year NBA veteran Sidney Wicks was sold Tuesday by the Portland Trailblazers to the Boston Celtics for an undisclosed amount of cash. . . 6-11 center LaRue Martin was placed on waivers by Seattle.

The Tampa Bucs' expansion team in the NFL signed former Pittsburgh QB Terry Hanratty Tuesday. . . Veteran QB Roman Gabriel signed with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Mustang booters beat Arlington

Ted Theofanous of Rolling Meadows booted home a penalty kick at 2:19 in the second overtime to give his Mustang soccer team a 2-1 upset victory over Arlington in Mid-Suburban League action at Rolling Meadows Tuesday.

In other MSL conference action Tuesday night, Fremd continued its winning ways by blanking Buffalo Grove 2-0 and Elk Grove knocked off Hoffman Estates by a 2-2 score.

In the Central Suburban League, Maine West rebounded from last week's tough loss to Maine East by nipping Niles West 3-2.

And in a classic upset in nonconference play, Prospect handed Barrington a 2-1 loss.

Rolling Meadows won behind senior goalie Mike Zimmerman, who was tending the nets for the first time in a varsity game. Zimmerman stopped 15 shots, allowing only a third-period tally by Paul Wel.

Meadows' Taras Halli tied the score with a goal at 16:37 of the fourth period before Theofanous won the contest by slamming in his penalty kick.

The Mustangs' record is now 3-6. Fremd's victory, their eighth without a loss (they have one tie), was powered by a pair of first-half goals by Rick Garcia and Tom Corawell.

Garcia's goal was assisted by Jerry Norys and Cornwell's tally was assisted by Bob Bischoff.

Viking goalie Eric Hartman earned the shutout.

The Buffalo Grove frosh-soph team handed Fremd its first lower-level loss, 1-0.

Elk Grove improved its MSL record to 4-1-1 with its 3-1 victory over Hoffman. Mark Heffley opened the scoring for the Grens with an unassisted corner kick and Tony Kees and Mike Jablonski added goals. Kees' score was assisted by Dan Boutallier and Kees assisted on Jablonski's marker.

Elk Grove's goalie, Ron Sanders, stopped 12 Hoffman shots, but he couldn't stop sophomore Fran Mueller from kicking a pair of Hawk goals.

John Cambora and Don Gay shared the goal tending duties for Hoffman Estates.

Prospect's impressive victory over tough Barrington was the Knights' third win in a row and gives them a 4-1 record for the season. Prospect goalie Norm Raddatz limited the Broncos to just one goal while turning aside 10 shots.

Two third-period goals — by Ed Lindemann and Santiago Bustamonte — gave Prospect the victory. Bustamonte's score came on a penalty shot.

Maine West's CSL South record moved to 3-1 (they are 1-3 over-all) and the Warriors moved into second place in the division with a comeback victory over Niles West.

After the Indians took a 2-0 first-quarter lead, Maine West stormed back for a tie on goals by Felix Garza in the second period and John Bachmeier in the third.

The winning goal came in the fourth quarter and was scored by Warrior Walt Wrona.

Tennis leaders warm to MSL meet

The Arlington Cardinals and Prospect Knights warmed up for the Mid-Suburban League tennis meet this weekend with convincing dual meet victories.

Arlington, unbeaten in dual meets and the defending league champions, shut out Conant 7-0 while Prospect, 11-1 in the MSL, topped Fremd 5-1.

Arlington lost only five games to the Cougars as they moved their final record to a glittering 12-0.

The Cardinals got 4-0, 4-0 wins from singles players Janet Haberkorn and Carrie Sears and doubles teams Laura Sanders and Kim Broderick, Lisa Pugsley and Beth Klawitter and Kathi Golden and Beth DiCola.

Prospect's Knights won their abbreviated decision over Fremd as singles players Jean Rezny and Julie Shwem scored three set victories.

Fremd's No. 3 doubles team of Nancy Bowles and Pam Moyer took the Vikings' only point with a 6-3, 6-3 win.

Buffalo Grove, another team who will have something to say about the championship this week, won an abbreviated 6-0 verdict over Palatine.

The Blain, led by singles players

Lisa Smart and Julia Harvey and No. 4 doubles players Debby Dumelle and Susan Lally, won all their matches in straight sets.

Forest View and Rolling Meadows fought a close match before the Falcons emerged with a 4-3 win.

Barb Gallo and Kris Krueger took singles points for the Mustangs, Gallo winning her No. 1 match 6-0, 6-0.

But Forest View took three doubles points. Jenny Kim and Nancy Lachus leading the way at No. 4 doubles, to take the match.

Hersey got singles points from Debby Sampson and Lisa Buck at No. 1 and No. 3 singles as the Huskies bumped off Wheeling's Wildcats, 5-1.

Wheeling's only point came from Laura Bencko and Pam Smith at No. 3 doubles.

Elk Grove lost two singles points to Hoffman's Kate Swaya and Karen O'Malley but held on to win the match 5-2.

The Grens took all four doubles points in straight sets and Gayle Lek-sander won a singles point to give Elk Grove the edge.

Dog care clinic opens Saturday

The seventh annual University of Illinois Symposium on Dog Care and Health will be held Saturday, at the Illinois Union on the University of Illinois campus in Urbana. Featuring an excellent panel of speakers, the symposium is co-sponsored by the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine and the Illinois Dog Clubs and Breeders Assn.

Three speakers will discuss subjects covering canine pediatrics, care of the aged dog, estrous control and skin diseases. The noon luncheon speaker will be Michael Ushijima, attorney and president of the IDCA.

Included in the program are tours of both the small and large animal clinics.

Registration is from 8 to 8:30 a.m., with the program starting at 8:30. The registration fee for the symposium is $17, which includes a noon luncheon. For more information, contact Dr. Jack L. Tuttle, New Largo Animal Clinic, University of Illinois, Urbana.

Obedience trial weekend — Glenbard All Breed Obedience Club, Inc. holds its annual obedience trial Sunday, in the main exhibition building, DuPage County Fairgrounds, Manchester and County Farm roads, Wheaton.

They have a record entry of 419 dogs with 464 class entries. The entry was so large that they were looking for additional judges.

Here's your chance to attend an obedience trial and learn what it is all about. A $1 donation gets the adults in and children under 12 are admitted free when accompanied by parents. Judging will start at 9 a.m.

Collic match — Lake County Fairgrounds, Rtes. 45 and 120, Grayslake holds the Central States Collic Club match, Sunday, Oct. 24.

The match will be open to any A.K.C. registered or eligible for registration collic two months of age or older. The gates open at 8 a.m. with entries taken until 9. Judging will start at 10 a.m. and will be done by Mrs. Sue Barlow, Wingate Collics, from Indianapolis.

There will be plenty of free parking, so if you want a chance to see this great breed at a specialty event here is your chance.

Barks & Bays — And speaking about Collics, remember in the last column the question was asked where the name "Collic" originated.

People really wondered about that one. Letters were received, people who saw your editor asked about it and in general it created a lot of interest.

However, only one person had the right answer and that was in a letter received from Kathleen Lyons of Des Plaines. The answer: "Collic" comes from the word "colle" used by Scots and Englishmen to describe the breed years ago. Early specimens of the breed, especially the smooth variety, had a great deal of black in their coats.

Mason Shoes tops women's leader

Lu Schoenberger registered the top score of the season for the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League when she blasted a booming 244 game enroute to a 623 series at Brunswick Northwest Bowl.

Lu's series, the high for the evening, helped Striking Lanes grab five of seven points from Ziebart Rust-proofing of Des Plaines.

Supporting Schoenberger for Striking were Eunice Whitmore's 543, Bette Breile's 509 and Judy Brumond's 503. Ziebart countered with a balanced effort headed by Susie Capizano's 542 and Carol Anderson's 521.

League-leading Peterson Safety Service was trimmed 4-3 by Mason Shoes, but still maintained a four-point advantage over runnerup Ziebart.

Mason turned the tables behind consistent scoring spearheaded by Peggy Wales' 504 and Irm Faust's all-spore 183 game. Peterson captured the opening game and series as Bobbie Kostelny rolled 528-205 and Bonnie Kuhn 512.

Ten Pin Bowl rallied from a first-game defeat to claim a 5-2 triumph over Thunderbird Country Club as Joan Flywack rolled 532. Thunderbird relied on identical 502's by Sally Jo Gerard and Elaine Nirva.

L-Tran Engineering jumped into third place in the standings by virtue of sweeping Tower Cleaners, 7-0. Lorie Nichols was the force behind L-Tran's success as she hit 571-212 while teammate Isobel Kosi chipped in with 518.

STANDINGS

1. Peterson Safety Service 34, 2. Ziebart of Des Plaines 30, 3. L-Tran Engineering 26, 4. Striking Lanes 25, 5. Thunderbird Country Club 19, 6. Ten Pin Bowl 17, 7. Mason Shoes 13, 8. Tower Cleaners 4.

Formco rolls into title scramble

by DON CHRISTENSEN

In Saturday's action at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines, Formco Metal Projects moved back into contention in the Paddock Classic Traveling League.

Greg Fugiel decided to take matters in his own hands by leading his Formco team, Oct. 2 with 690 and last Saturday with a 203-213-231 for 647. Barry Stjernberg helped Formco move into second place with his 618, dropping Uncle Andy's into third place.

Meanwhile, Beverly Lanes continued its hot pace by taking two of three games from Weber Kettles plus nine of the 15 individual points to keep a 10 1/2-point lead in the fast-moving league.

Bob Green, who commutes from Kansas City, Mo. each weekend, led Beverly Lanes with 235-218 for 647 to tie the evening's high series. Joe Simons paced Weber Kettles with 594.

In the match between Dick McFeely Pontiac and Grand Spaulding Dodge, it turned out to be a dead heat with each team registering 12 1/2 points each. Ray Ischer showed the way for Grand Spaulding Dodge with 595 and Ray Lathouse was on Rey's heels with 594 for Dick McFeely.

John Kartheiser's 254, high game of the night, and fine total of 641, paced Oost Produce over Des Plaines Ace Hardware, who won the first game for three points plus four individual points.

After the first game, however, it was all Oost as they won 14 1/2 of the remaining 17 points.

This week the league travels to Striker Lanes, Buffalo Grove with the following matchups: Formco Metal Projects vs. Grand Spaulding Dodge, Dick McFeely Pontiac vs. Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Oost Produce vs. Beverly Lanes, and Weber-Bar-B-Que Kettles vs. Des Plaines Ace Hardware.

There has been a schedule change: The original position night schedules for Oct. 23 at Des Plaines has been moved to Sims Bowl, while Des Plaines Lanes takes Dec. 11 at Sims Bowl.

Standings

- Beverly Lanes, 98.5, Formco Metal Projects 88, Uncle Andy's 85.5, Weber Kettles, 77.5, Grand Spaulding Dodge 75, Oost Produce 70, Dick McFeely Pontiac 55, Des Plaines Ace Hardware 50.5.

Soccer club hosts special clinic tonight

The Palatine Celtic Soccer Club will sponsor a Referee Clinic tonight at 7:00 p.m. at Maple Park Field House on the corner of Anderson and Winston drives.

The clinic will be run by Jim Rennie, Director of Referees, and is open

Untie knotty bid problem

Today's hand reached us from an Oregon reader. It seems that he played five diamonds and went down one. This was after the opponents led a heart to the ace, a heart back to the king and a ruff of the third heart.

North felt that with only eight high-card points, South should have responded one notrump, not two diamonds. But after he had responded two diamonds, he should have passed the three-spade bid.

Three spades would have made, since North would lose just two hearts and two spades.

The hand brings up some interesting points in bidding. Thus, we would respond two diamonds with the Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

South hand. A seven-card suit to the ace-king is worth bidding. However, we would have tried three notrump as our second bid with that South hand. Then if North passed and he should do just that, South would wrap up that three notrump.

We would be lucky. West would start with a heart and the third heart lead would clear the suit, but unfortunately for the defense there would be no way for West to get in to score his last two hearts. With some other lead the play is more complicated, but any player worth his salt would still bring home nine tricks by careful play.

China Tuesday confirmed the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as the successor to Mao Tse-tung and leader of one-fourth of all mankind. A government spokesman also refused to discuss a reported purge against Mao's widow, Chiang Ching.

The nation

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt" in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman. All three men remain free, but Judge John Sirica can now set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

The United Auto Workers Union announced Tuesday night that 170,000 Ford Motor Co. workers have approved a new three-year contract by a narrow 489-vote margin. The workers have been on strike for 28 days. Ford said workers will begin returning to work at some plants Wednesday.

Economy

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.56 points Monday, is at 832.35, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 829.63. In the last 12 sessions the closely followed. Dow has plunged nearly 77 points.

4 seek Dist. 59 post; filing ends Monday

by SHIRYL JEDLINSKI

Four candidates are seeking a vacant position on the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education. Monday is the last day residents can apply for the seats.

The Dist. 59 board had a special meeting Monday night to accept the resignation of Charles Canupp, who was elected to the board in April.

Canupp, 263 Greenbrier St., Elk Grove Village, said Friday new developments in his job at Speery University will not allow him enough time to be a good board member.

THE FOUR ANNOUNCED candidates for the Dist. 59 post are Erwin

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday—two in Oklahoma and one in Florida—but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 228,000 doses of swine flu vac-

Dr. Robert Sencer, disease control center director, said autopsy reports, field studies taken Tuesday by the center's epidemiologists in Pittsburgh and results of vaccine inoculations elsewhere indicated that the three died of heart attacks unrelated to the flu shots.

"IT LOOKS AS though this is a circumstantial situation where three people just happened to have heart attacks close together," Sencer said.

Sencer urged state and local health officials to continue administering the Panel urges city to seek expert to aid bus system

A three-member city council committee in Des Plaines will suggest that the city ask the North Suburban Mass Transit District to hire a marketing manager in an attempt to bolster ridership on the intracity bus system.

City officials attending a meeting of the special transportation committee Tuesday night said they believe a full-time marketing manager is needed because marketing and promotional efforts by NORTHRAN and the Regional Transportation Authority have been ineffective in improving ridership. They said a marketing manager could work to make the four local bus routes more responsive to the needs of residents.

Ald. George Olen, 2nd, committee chairman, said a letter outlining the proposal will be drafted and his group will ask Mayor Charles J. Bolek to send it to NORTHRAN, which operates the bus system.

RIDERSHIP ON THE intracity bus system has been far below the breakeven point, since service was expanded last Dec. 1. The system needs 6,000 riders a week to break even, but it has been averaging only 1,000 to 1,100.

The RTA, which funds the bus service, has said north and southwest routes will be eliminated or changed if service does not show a marked increase. The system also has west and south routes.

The proposal to hire a marketing manager was made recently by Edward W. Tobin, a trustee on the Des Plaines Mass Transit District, a city advisory commission.

"The bus system is not getting the riders per vehicle mile that the RTA and NORTHRAN says it should be getting and I think if we don't do something, we are going to lose it," he told the committee Tuesday. "I want to see the system managed instead of just seeing buses run up and down the street empty."

TOBIN SAID HE believes ridership could be improved by hiring a marketing manager to conduct a marketing research campaign to determine where the present bus system is deficient.

He has suggested surveys be conducted so that bus service can be tailored more closely to the needs of railroad commuters. He also has recommended that downtown merchants be asked to support a campaign in which shoppers would be allowed to ride buses free at certain times.

The committee rejected a proposal Tuesday to recommend that the city council appropriate money to hire a marketing manager.

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimony. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimony

Dist. 59 may restore bus for bike safety program

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education will reconsider providing funds to maintain the township's school bicycle safety program.

The program has been jeopardized by the district's withdrawal of a bus used to transport Dist. 59 children to the training facility, but Board Pres. Judith Zanca said Tuesday the board will reconsider funding for the bus service at its Monday meeting.

"When we made the cut last month we didn't know as much about the bicycle safety program as we do now," she said. "I'm sure the board members will be willing to reconsider funding the bus for the rest of the fall program."

BETWEEN $1,500 and $2,000 is needed to bus the remaining 1,300 students scheduled for the fall program from their home schools to the training facility at Lively Junior High School, 900 Leicester Rd., Elk Grove Village, Mrs. Zanca said. The students involved are from Frost School in Mount Prospect and High Ridge and Devonshire schools in Des Plaines.

"The money would be available for this fall, but there has to be some creative thinking done as to what we should do with the program in the future," Mrs. Zanca said. "It's a very well organized program, but the transportation cost is a concern to the board."

She said the cost of the district could be cut in half if participation were limited to first, third and fifth grade students. Students in all grades participate now.

Officials from Elk Grove Township and Dist. 59 met Monday night to discuss the bicycle program's problems and agreed to meet again in late winter to discuss transportation funding for the spring program.

BECAUSE THE township's fiscal year begins in April, funds for the bus service possibly could be included in the township's 1977 budget, said Richard Hall, Elk Grove Township supervisor.

"It's a cooperative program though and we hope they'll (the board) want to uphold their end of it," he said.

Since last month, when Dist. 59 eliminated $5,600 for the bus from its budget, the bicycle safety program, complete with 18 bicycles, 10 signs and 20 sandbags, has had to be trucked from school to school.

Under this system, students cannot use the bike riding practice area set up at the Elk Grove Park District parking lot adjacent to Lively School. Also, because many schools do not have classrooms for the program, there is no place to show bicycle safety films or to talk with the children before their practice riding.

OF THE SIX schools scheduled for the spring program, only Marshall School in Elk Grove Village is close enough so the children can walk to the Lively training site.

Program coordinator Elizabeth Coleman said that unless the use of a bus is regained, she will be unable to bring the program to children at Brentwood and Einstein schools in Des Plaines, Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Hopkins and Salt Creek schools in Elk Grove Village.

Lutheran General sets groundbreaking

Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, will conduct a groundbreaking ceremony at 11 a.m. Friday for a new ambulatory care center.

The 50,000-square-foot, three-level facility, will house the hospital's family patient center as well as outpatient services. It is to be constructed on Ballard Road, between Greenwood Avenue and Parkside Drive.

A hospital spokesman said the facility is scheduled to be completed by the end of next summer.

Dist. 59 hearing today on unit school

Public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Elk Grove High School.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in High School Dist. 214 in addition to Dist. 59 schools. The elementary and high schools would be placed under one school board and administration and the unit district would have the same boundaries as Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

DIST. 59 OFFICIALS favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214. Anyone affected by the proposed unit district may testify at tonight's hearing at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Future hearing dates and times will be established before tonight's hearing ends about 10 p.m.

After all interested parties have been heard, County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Singer to perform at Alliance church

Perilla Lim, gospel singer, will perform Thursday at the Des Plaines Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 382 S. Mount Prospect Rd.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. and the Rev. Roger K. Shantz invites the public to attend.

Ms. Lim has made several appearances on radio and television programs and hosts a musical radio show in Long Beach, Calif.

Cronin will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Four seek opening on Dist. 59 board

Piklaci, 1223 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights; Gerald Smiley, 1156 Cheltenham Rd., Elk Grove Village; Lynn Clapper, 1523 S. Kaspar, Arlington Heights; and Saul Cohen, 312 Dorchester Ln., Elk Grove Villg

All four were unsuccessful last month in their bids for the vacant board position created by the resignation of Lynne Helvie. A fifth unsuccessful candidate for that position, Sharon Chavon of 641 Burgundy Ct., Elk Grove Village, has not decided whether she will seek Canupp's seat.

Smiley served on the Dist. 59 board from 1972 until July 1975 when he resigned for business reasons. Piklaci was appointed to his seat in 1975 and lost his bid for a three-year term in last April's election. Piklaci had served on the board from 1971 to 1974.

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law.

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostroff, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostroff. "One is equal protection for Mr. Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because

"he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rinella of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony payments.

RINELLA DISAGREED with Ostroff's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

Hearing today for robbery suspect

A Wheeling man suspected of armed robbery in the village in June will appear for a court bond hearing today in connection with the crime.

Michael A. Ladd, 18, of 1318 E. 1st St., was picked up by Wheeling police Tuesday night after being extradited from California where he was being held on another charge.

Det. Sgt. William Ralston said Ladd is a suspect in the June 5 armed robbery of Scott's Cleaners, 15 S. Milwaukee Ave., in which two persons took $500 after tying up the clerk with neckties. The two used a blue steel automatic pistol to rob the store.

Ralston said that police still are trying to identify the other man involved in the robbery.

Ladd will have a bond amount set by a judge today to ensure his appearance in court.

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday — two in Oklahoma and one in Florida — but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 230,000 doses of swine flu vac-

Wosik bows out of hearing suit in zoning case

by LINDA PUNCH

Circuit Court Judge Joseph M. Wosik Tuesday disqualified himself from hearing Wheeling's lawsuit against former officials and firms connected with the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal because he has known defendant James Stavros "for many a year."

Wosik said he has been acquainted with Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, for about 15 years. Stavros in 1974 pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax evasion charges and was sentenced to four years in prison. He was paroled in September.

"If I know a litigant and rule against the village in a case, then I could be seriously challenged, even though I have not seen or spoken with him (Stavros) recently," he said.

WOSIK SAID HE is not, and never has been, "politically involved with" Stavros.

"I live on the South Side and he lives in Wheeling," he said.

Wosik said the case has been sent back to Donald J. O'Brien, presiding judge of the Chancery Division of the Cook County Circuit Court, for reassignment.

The village, in August filed suit against the four former officials and five firms in an attempt to recoup bribe money paid to the officials for zoning favors. The suit asks for a return of the bribe money paid to the officials and $1 million in punitive damages.

Other defendants in the suit include William Bleber, former village building director; Michael Valenza, former village trustee; William Hart, former village trustee; Bernard Wasmer, owner of Duo Sign and Billboard, Wheeling; Zale Construction Co., Arlington Heights; Harmony Builders, Wheeling; Melster-Neiberg Co., Wheeling; Wickes Corp., Wheeling; and Ben Pekin Corp., Wheeling.

VALENZA AND Hart pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to commit extortion in June 1974. Valenza was sentenced to a nine-month prison term, and Hart was sentenced to one year of probation. Bleber pleaded guilty to federal extortion, perjury and tax charges, served a prison term and was paroled in 1975.

The village also is seeking $25,000 from the Ohio Casualty Insurance Co., which Village Atty. John Burke said had bonded the village officials for "honest and faithful performance of duties."

Wheeling officials contend the zoning scandal cost the village "large sums of money" in legal fees and other expenses to correct zoning problems created by the payoffs. The suit also states the reputation of the vil-

Court rejects alimony plea of nun's ex-husband

by NANCY GOTTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimony. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimony"

Planning top priority in Dist. 125: report

Long-range planning for growth in High School Dist. 125 should be a top priority for this school year, Supt. Robert McKenna said Tuesday in a report to the board of education.

McKenna said the Stevenson High School district should begin to project student enrollment for the next 20 years. The acquisition of a second high school site also should be considered, he said.

Recommendations for the future should deal with the expansion of the Stevenson High School building in Prairie View, McKenna said.

"We have to decide if we want to go to a second campus, or if we want to stay small with one school,"

McKenna said.

A STUDY OF THE organizational structure of Dist. 125 should be a high priority this year, McKenna said. He said it is necessary to study both the internal structure of Stevenson and districtwide organization.

Petitions against Crossings lights given to trustees

Petitions signed by 129 residents of The Crossings development opposing 11 of the proposed streetlights in the development have been presented to the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

Approximately 40 of the townhouse residents attended Monday night's board meeting to protest the installation of the streetlights recommended by the village administration.

The trustees tabled the matter until Monday allowing the police and engineering departments time to review the lighting requirements for the development at Arlington Heights Road and Ill. Rte. 83.

Homeowners at the meeting said lights attached to garages in the development provide adequate lighting and more would be unsightly, waste energy and create an unnecessary expense for the homeowners' association which is required to pay the lighting bills.

"WE HAVE LIGHTING. We have plenty of lighting. We're worried about being overburdened with lights. And it's going to take away from the whole concept of the thing (development)," Steve Brodie, 1249 Bristol Ln., said. The Crossings is a country-style townhome development.

"These bright lights would be highly objectionable coming into our windows," said another resident of Bristol Lane. "If we wanted that, we would have stayed in the city," shouted another from the group. James Button Jr., president of The Crossings Homeowners Assn., presented the petition urging the board "to eliminate the requirement for the placement of additional street lighting along the interior roads of all phases of The Crossings."

Button presented a drawing of the development and cited 11 intersections where he said proposed streetlights should not be erected, most of which were along Bristol Lane.

TRUSTEES EXPRESSED concern the village could be held liable for accidents caused by inadequate lighting if they waived the lighting requirements. Village ordinance requires street lights at every intersection and no more than 400 feet apart.

"If you want to waive it (the ordinance), you can waive it," Village Atty. Richard Rayza told the board. "The whole purpose of the street lighting is to protect the people."

Trustee Thomas Mahoney said if the board allows the reduction in street lighting, it would require that the homeowners' association would pay for any lighting requested in the future. Mahoney said problems may arise which will cause homeowners to change their minds. "Let's say it" (Continued on Page 5)

Village board wrapup

New gift policy vetoed by officials

A proposal to allow Buffalo Grove officials to accept gifts worth less than $25 from contractors, developers or businessmen has been rejected by the village board.

Officials now are not allowed to accept gifts of any value. The proposed administrative order was designed to allow officials to accept cookies, candy or other small items expressing appreciation, according to the village staff.

The proposal read: "The Village of Buffalo Grove is justly proud of its reputation for providing outstanding public service on an equal basis to all residents, contractors and developers. Because of this total effort, individuals and organizations on occasion desire to render a gift in appreciation. In order to avoid any misunderstanding of donor intent, the acceptance of such gifts having a value in excess of $25 is hereby prohibited."

Those favoring the proposal were Trustees Thomas Mahoney and Jerry Driscoll. Trustees Clarice Rech, Robert Bogart and Dorothy Carroll said they prefer the current policy.

Funds asked for public works

The preparation of an application for four village public works projects has been approved by the village board.

The money will be sought under the U.S. Public Works Act for the remodeling of the village hall, adding space to the public works building, installing sewers, water mains, streets and lighting in the proposed village center and erecting traffic lights at Ill. Rte. 63 and Buffalo Grove Road.

Administrative Assistant William Whited said a previous proposal to seek funding for the strengthening of the banks of Buffalo Creek near Raupp Boulevard is "not practical." He said the creek work must be done this fall, and the applications will not be reviewed until January. He also said the project is not the type desired under the act.

The public works act is designed to create jobs. Whited said about $64 million is being allocated to Illinois to be dispersed among the municipalities. Seventy per cent of the funds will go to areas in which the unemployment rate is equal to or greater than the national average.

Golfers face higher fees

Fees for the Buffalo Grove Golf Course have been raised by the village board.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1977, the rate for 18 holes on a weekday will be raised from $6 to $6.50. The nine-hole weekday rate will increase from $3.50 to $3.75. Weekend morning rates will go from $8 to $8.50, and weekend afternoon rates, from $4 to $4.50.

The price of full membership with two starting times will remain at $450 for new members, but increase from $375 to $400 for renewals.

Regular weekday membership will go up from $160 to $175 for renewals and from $175 to $200 for new members.

The cost of the driving range will increase from $1.50 to $1.75. Golf course manager Carmen Molinaro said the increases "will still keep us as low or lower than all other clubs in the area."

He said the weekday increases are the first in two years and "will help offset rising costs of labor."

He said the rise in driving range rates will offset the cost of lost balls.

Village buys three trucks

The board has agreed to purchase three 1-ton trucks for general maintenance, hauling and snow plowing from Karzen GMC Trucks Inc., Elk Grove Village.

Karzen submitted a bid of $26,740, including a trade-in of three village trucks which have deteriorated from rust.

The only other bid was $28,400 from Lake County GMC of Waukegan.

New unit school hearings for Dist. 59 begin today

Public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Elk Grove High School.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in High School Dist. 214 in addition to Dist. 59 schools. The elementary and high schools would be placed under one school board and administration and the unit district would have the same boundaries as Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

DIST. 59 OFFICIALS favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

Anyone affected by the proposed unit district may testify at tonight's hearing at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Future hearing dates and times will be established before tonight's hearing ends about 10 p.m.

After all interested parties have been heard, County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Cronin will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Homes, office plans before panel tonight

Plans for the development of housing units northeast of Buffalo Grove and for an office complex on the west side of the village along Dundee Road will be reviewed tonight by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Zale Construction Co., Arlington Heights, is seeking to build 674 single-family and 130 multi-family units on 200 acres on the southwest corner of Busch and Weiland roads.

Two other developers also would like to build three office and commercial buildings west of Plaza Verde Shopping Center at the corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

anation about the district should be provided to the community "to enhance the image of the school system."

The increased publication of the school newspaper, participation of school officials in community meetings, distribution of newsletters to residents and the publication of an annual report for 1976-77 are among the methods to improve communication recommended by McKanna.

ANOTHER TOP priority which McKanna called for was the development of an evaluation system for Dist. 125 students.

McKanna also listed the following items as important priorities to be accomplished by June 1977:

• A formal appraisal system for professional staff should be designed to improve the instructional program.

• The district should consider requiring specified levels of proficiency as prerequisites for students to select elective courses.

• Dist. 125 should work closely with the Lake County Area Vocational Center staff members to make the center a viable component of the district's curriculum offerings.

McKanna said comments from the board members, department chairmen and administrators were incorporated in his recommendation.

some kid gets killed," he said. Ron Volter, 1265 Franklin Ln., said streets in The Crossings are better lighted with garage lights than most residential areas with street lights.

THE BOARD ASKED the engineering department to measure the amount of lighting provided on the streets from garage lights and for a police department review of the safety aspects.

In a related development, the board voted to accept four streets in phase one of The Crossings for public maintenance if they meet village standards. The streets had been privately maintained by the association.

"As you will recall, in our past several meetings it was our combined feeling that the original decision to make the phase one interior streets 'private' roads was a serious mistake, when taken in the context of all other phases being accepted as village roads," Bufton said in a letter to the village.

The four streets are Bristol Lane, Farnsworth Lane, Franklin Lane and Fremont Way.

The Richards Group, developers of The Crossings, and the homeowners association will be required to install new curbs and gutters before the village will accept the streets. Village Engineer Carl Rapp said an evaluation of the pavement will be made to determine if the roads meet village standards.

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law...

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostrow, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostrow. "One is equal protection for Mr. Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rinella of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony payments.

RINELLA DISAGREED with Ostrow's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt" in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman. All three men remain free, but Judge John Sirica can now set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

Economy

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.56 points Monday, is at 932.35, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 929.63. In the last 12 sessions the closely followed Dow has plunged nearly 77 points.

Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, play hostess at a reception at the center, Michael J. Howlett, at Tuesday's opening of the 1229 E. Golf Rd., Schaumburg.

Phone troubles plague 1st day at driver test station

About 100 Northwest suburban residents saved themselves a trip to Libertyville or Elgin Tuesday by using the new driver testing station in Schaumburg.

But those who tried to call first could not be sure if the six-year wait for a suburban testing center was really over.

If they called 833-8660, the number publicized by Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett's office, they heard a recording say the number had yet to be connected.

IF THEY CALLED directory assistance, they learned that there was no listing for a driver testing station in Schaumburg.

If they called Dan Bilardello of Illinois Bell Telephone's administrative offices, they learned that the 893 number was incorrect. The right number, he said, was 843-1450.

If they called that number, they might have heard the phone ring dozens of times without being answered. Or they might have heard station director Robert Guzas answer to say that the first-day turnout was much less than the 700 customers he had expected.

The new center's telephone woes began with "a clerical error," Bilardello explained. "We gave the Secretary of State's office an incorrect number."

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE was not able to straighten out the problem, he said, because it normally takes two or three days for new numbers to be listed.

Clerk consoles carping voters missed in count

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The canvasser must have come while she was out grocery shopping, the woman said.

Why didn't he leave a card, she fumed; why didn't she get a chance to get back to him before they took her name off the voter lists?

Al Shapiro nodded and smiled.

Canvassers are supposed to leave a card if no one is home and they cannot verify registered voters from neighbors or a mailbox, he told her. It's not an easy job, he said, and canvassers will make mistakes.

WELL, THIS ONE didn't do a good job, the woman replied. She wants to make a complaint.

Shapiro glanced down at the affidavit form to his left as he suffered the verbal jabs. During a pause in the woman's criticism, he handed her the form and suggested she complete it to "expedite" the matter.

"You know," he said, "I sit here, and I listen to you, and I understand how you feel. You want your vote, and I'm proud of you. I don't blame you. I'd feel the same way."

The canvass took place a couple of weeks ago. Precinct judges, voter registration lists in hand, went knocking on doors, asking who lives there and do they know who lives in neighboring homes.

THE PURPOSE, Shapiro explains, is to weed out voters who have moved or died.

"People will move out of an area. They could care less. They just move out, and they don't notify anybody," he says. "By law, you have to take a canvass; otherwise, you'd get a million ghost voters."

In cases where there was no way to verify where a registered voter lived, the county clerk's office mailed a card to the address, notifying the voter that he would be removed from the lists unless he verified the address with the clerk's office — a matter of signing an affidavit.

A number of cards were mailed throughout the county, but an official in the clerk's Chicago office said they have "no idea" how many were mailed.

TO MAKE THE affidavit verification easier, the clerk's office set up temporary quarters in various suburbs on Monday and Tuesday.

Shapiro, a deputy county clerk, sat at the table in the Elk Grove Town Hall for two 12-hour periods, listening to complaints and verifying voters missed in the canvass.

He did not know how many people he had seen, but a folder on his table was filled with signed affidavits.

The stream of traffic to his table was constant. On Monday, he had no time for lunch. At 6 p.m., somebody brought him a sandwich, but he was so busy, he could not eat it until almost 9 p.m.

"MOST PEOPLE COME in here feeling that their vote is being taken away," he says.

One woman came in, he recalls, and told him she had not planned to vote in November. But she was going to now, she told him, because "they" were trying to take her vote away.

"I like these people coming in yelling and screaming for their vote," he says. "I don't care if they're Democrats or Republicans they're fighting for their vote."

Yet, at the same time, he supports the canvassers.

"They have to try to count 300, 400, 500, 600 people," he says. "Try it once."

IN GENERAL, they are a conscientious bunch, he says. Many of them, realizing they made some mistakes, came to his temporary quarters on their own time this week to amend the error.

"Some of these people — the canvassers — come in here with tears in their eyes," Shapiro says. "They feel terrible."

But when the mistakes happen, many of the voters don't care to hear about the canvassers' problems.

That's where the psychology in Shapiro's job surfaces. You have to smile, he says. You have to tell a joke or two.

"If I were to start arguing back with them," he says, "that wouldn't

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimo-

ny. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimo-

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday — two in Oklahoma and one in Florida — but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 238,000 doses of swine flu vac-

Dr. Robert Sencer, disease control center director, said autopsy reports, field studies taken Tuesday by the center's epidemiologists in Pittsburgh and results of vaccine inoculations elsewhere indicated that the three died of heart attacks unrelated to the flu shots.

"IT LOOKS AS though this is a circumstantial situation where three people just happened to have heart attacks close together," Sencer said.

Sencer urged state and local health officials to continue administering the cine were dispatched by the state last week to the area, although he did not know how many persons have been inoculated so far.

He said there have been no reports of adverse reactions among Illinois residents inoculated since last week.

"THE PROGRAM has been suspended temporarily," Hayes said. "We have heard from the Center for Disease Control (in Atlanta) and we did find out that these were three of the 1,200 people vaccinated in this state (in Pennsylvania). In light of the publicity that it has drawn, Dr. Lashof decided it would be best to suspend the program."

He said officials do not know how long the suspension will last. "Hopefully it will be very short," he said.

Hayes confirmed that Illinois' initial vaccine supply came from the Parke-Davis Co., the same firm that supplied vaccine to Pennsylvania, where the deaths occurred.

He stressed, however, that there is

Dist. 59 may restore bus for bike safety program

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education will reconsider providing funds to maintain the township's school bicycle safety program.

The program has been jeopardized by the district's withdrawal of a bus used to transport Dist. 59 children to the training facility, but Board Pres. Judith Zanca said Tuesday the board will reconsider funding for the bus service at its Monday meeting.

"When we made the cut last month we didn't know as much about the bicycle safety program as we do now," she said. "I'm sure the board members will be willing to reconsider funding the bus for the rest of the fall program."

BETWEEN $1,500 and $2,000 is needed to bus the remaining 1,300 students scheduled for the fall program from their home schools to the training facility at Lively Junior High School, 909 Leicester Rd., Elk Grove Village, Mrs. Zanca said. The students involved are from Frost School in Mount Prospect and High Ridge and Devonshire schools in Des Plaines.

"The money would be available for this fall, but there has to be some creative thinking done as to what we should do with the program in the future," Mrs. Zanca said. "It's a very well organized program, but the transportation cost is a concern to the board."

She said the cost of the district could be cut in half if participation were limited to first, third and fifth grade students. Students in all grades participate now.

Officials from Elk Grove Township and Dist. 59 met Monday night to discuss the bicycle program's problems and agreed to meet again in late winter to discuss transportation funding for the spring program.

BECAUSE THE township's fiscal year begins in April, funds for the bus service possibly could be included in the township's 1977 budget, said Richard Hall, Elk Grove Township supervisor.

"It's a cooperative program though and we hope they'll (the board) want to uphold their end of it," he said.

Since last month, when Dist. 59 eliminated $5,600 for the bus from its budget, the bicycle safety program, complete with 18 bicycles, 10 signs and 20 sandbags, has had to be trucked from school to school.

Under this system, students cannot use the bike riding practice area set up at the Elk Grove Park District parking lot adjacent to Lively School. Also, because many schools do not have classrooms for the program, there is no place to show bicycle safety films or to talk with the children before their practice riding.

OF THE SIX schools scheduled for the spring program, only Marshall School in Elk Grove Village is close enough so the children can walk to the Lively training site.

Program coordinator Elizabeth Coleman said that unless the use of a bus is regained, she will be unable to bring the program to children at Brentwood and Einstein schools in Des Plaines, Forest View School in Mount Prospect and Hopkins and Salt Creek schools in Elk Grove Village.

"We're going to do everything possible to come up with the necessary funds to transport children from all over the township to Lively," Supt. Roger Bardwell said. "As educators, it's our responsibility to do what we can to show children the dangers of bicycle riding in the suburbs."

About 3,300 children participated in the program last year, earning certificates of achievement by successfully completing practice sessions and testing.

Dist. 59 hearing today on unit school

Public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m.

today at Elk Grove High School.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in High School Dist. 214 in addition to Dist. 59 schools. The elementary and high schools would be placed under one school board and administration and the unit district would have the same boundaries as Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

DIST. 59 OFFICIALS favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

Anyone affected by the proposed unit district may testify at tonight's hearing at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Future hearing dates and times will be established before tonight's hearing ends about 10 p.m.

After all interested parties have been heard, County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Cronin will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

accomplish anything."

INSTEAD, HE SAYS, the main task is to listen and take care of the paperwork so those coming in can get what they came for and leave.

"Those people come in and they're keyed up, and I let them scream and holler and get it out of their system," Shapiro says. "Then, I can try to explain to them."

Another woman came in. She's lived in her home for 11 years, she told Shapiro. If the canvasser had asked any of her neighbors if she lived there, they certainly would have said "yes."

"It's a dumb way to do things," she said.

Shapiro smiled and explained the reason for the canvass and the possibility for error. And, he added, he can understand people like her who come in and complain.

"You know," he quipped, "Ann Landers gets the same thing, but she gets so much money for it."

He handed her an affidavit, and she began to fill it out.

Court rejects alimony plea of nun's ex-husband

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law...

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostron, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostron.

"One is equal protection for Mr. Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rinella of Chicago, also said

Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

RINELLA DISAGREED with Ostron's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

China Tuesday confirmed the appointment of Hua Kuo-feng as the successor to Mao Tse-tung and leader of one-fourth of all mankind. A government spokesman also refused to discuss a reported purge against Mao's widow, Chiang Ching.

The nation

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt" in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman. All three men remain free, but Judge John Sirica can now set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

The United Auto Workers Union announced Tuesday night that 170,000 Ford Motor Co. workers have approved a new three-year contract by a narrow 489-vote margin. The workers have been on strike for 28 days. Ford said workers will begin returning to work at some plants Wednesday.

Economy

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.56 points Monday, is at 922.35, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 929.63. In the last 12 sessions the closely followed Dow has plunged nearly 77 points.

Phone troubles plague 1st day at driver test station

About 100 Northwest suburban residents saved themselves a trip to Libertyville or Elgin Tuesday by using the new driver testing station in Schaumburg.

But those who tried to call first could not be sure if the six-year wait for a suburban testing center was really over.

If they called 883-8660, the number published by Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett's office, they heard a recording say the number had yet to be connected.

IF THEY CALLED directory assistance, they learned that there was no listing for a driver testing station in Schaumburg.

If they called Dan Bilardello of Illinois Bell Telephone's administrative offices, they learned that the 883 number was incorrect. The right number, he said, was 843-1450.

If they called that number, they might have heard the phone ring dozens of times without being answered. Or they might have heard station director Robert Guzman answer to say that the first-day turnout was much less than the 700 customers he had expected.

The new center's telephone woes began with "a clerical error," Bilardello explained. "We gave the Secretary of State's office an incorrect number."

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE was not able to straighten out the problem, he said, because it normally takes two or three days for new numbers to be listed with the information operators.

And some callers heard the endless rings, he said, because "there were equipment problems," he said.

Guzman said only three of the office's four telephones seemed to be working properly.

Bilardello said callers who dial 883-8660 today will be referred to the correct number — 843-1450.

Roselle Road interchange futile: official

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg officials' attempts to obtain an interchange at Roselle Road and the Northwest tollway are futile, an official of the state toll highway authority said Tuesday.

"That site is particularly pointless. It just doesn't make sense, and we don't need or want an interchange at Roselle Road," Richard E. Blakeley, executive administrator and secretary of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority said.

Blakeley's remarks came in the wake of comments made Monday by Village Mgr. John E. Coste to members of Schaumburg's business development commission.

Coste told businessmen "the village has not given up its crusade" for a Roselle Road interchange, saying the access has always been part of Schaumburg's master plan.

THE BUSINESS commission is studying road and traffic problems in the northern end of Schaumburg. According to a recent study, traffic north of Golf Road is expected to more than double during the next 13 years.

The commissioners have proposed that Plum Grove Road be extended over the tollway to Algonquin Road to relieve congestion on Ill. Rte. 53, Meacham and Roselle roads. The commission is studying ways of financing the project estimated at $4.5 million to $5 million.

Coste told commissioners he believes the six-mile span between interchanges at Ill. Rte. 53 and Barrington Road is "the longest distance between interchanges in the entire Chicago metropolitan area."

"I don't believe that's true. In fact, I'm certain of it," Blakeley said, although he could not cite an example. "If you don't believe me, look at any tollway map," he said.

BLAKELEY SAID "there is no reason to anticipate any modifications to the entire tollway system in the foreseeable future."

"And, there are two reasons for that. We have no money and most interchanges are not compatible with the system anyway," he said.

"Our job is not to solve traffic problems but to move people from point to point on a high speed system," Blakeley said.

Schaumburg has been petitioning for the interchange for several years. HOFFMAN ESTATES trustees dropped support for the project last year and joined the Village of Inverness in opposing the access.

At the time Hoffman Estates officials said they believed early completion of the Elgin-O'Hare Expressway, where a full interchange is proposed at Roselle Road, south of Nerge Road, would be a better solution to the Schaumburg area traffic congestion problems.

Their action came after receiving a copy of a letter sent to Gov. Daniel Walker by Inverness Pres. Russell V. Puzey, which said the access was not practical because of recent improvements made to Algonquin, Higgins and Golf roads and Euclid Avenue.

Puzey is an ex-officio director of the state toll highway authority.

Puzey said Inverness residents would suffer "intolerable traffic" problems from a Roselle Road interchange.

Thompson to speak to group Thursday

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson will speak at 7 p.m. Thursday at a meeting of the Northwest Suburban Assn. of Commerce and Industry at the Lancer Steak House Restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg.

The meeting is open to the public at $10 per person after association members' ticket requests have been processed, said William Leeson, association president.

The 150-member association was formed in April from the merger of the Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry and the Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce.

Information may be obtained by calling the association office, 822-7110.

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimo-

ny. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimo-

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu inoculation program after city hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday — two in Oklahoma and one in Florida — but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 228,000 doses of swine flu vaccine were dispatched by the state last week to the area, although he did not know how many persons have been inoculated so far.

He said officials do not know how long the suspension will last. "Hopefully it will be very short," he said.

Hayes confirmed that Illinois' initial vaccine supply came from the Parke-Davis Co., the same firm that supplied vaccine to Pennsylvania, where the deaths occurred.

He stressed, however, that there is

Symphony to pet races—culture at Woodfield diverse

by TOM VON MALDER

When culture is mentioned in connection with the Woodfield Shopping Center, the Oct. 2, 1974, performance by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra is the event that comes to mind.

But Woodfield has been the scene of a variety of "cultural" events during its five-year history — everything from art to autos, sculpture to singing and theater to turtle races.

The big event, though, was the Chicago Symphony appearance, the first time the symphony ever played in a shopping center. An estimated 40,000 persons filled the center's Grand Court to hear the 108-piece symphony play Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky and Strauss.

ALTHOUGH THE sound of shoppers detracted from the performance at the beginning, the stores soon emptied as the throng settled down to hear the 90-minute concert. As conductor Henry Mazer said afterwards, "I felt like

I was in the Colosseum, but there were no lions." The only roar was the ovation at the end of the performance.

The symphony's $25,000 fee was paid by the center's developers and the members of the Woodfield Merchants Assn.

The center's Grand Court does not have the best acoustics for music and drama, but the sound has been adequate for such events as a presentation of highlights from the musical "Godspell." In 1973, performances of "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Julius Caesar" by the Travel Light Theatre's Shakespeare Touring Company in 1975. The Center Youth Theatre's historical play "Mackinac" in 1976 and the Free Street Theatre's "Workaday" adaptation of episodes from Studs Terkel's "Working" in 1974.

And then there are the exhibits that fill the ground-level walkways several times a year. Some are annual events, such as the Woodfield Auto Dealers show and the annual center photo contest.

THE ONE-TIME exhibits range from the beauty of 8,000 blooms set up by the Central States Dahlia Society to the historical antiques of the Industrial Heritage USA exhibit, including a plate and wine glass used by George Washington.

There have been others including the "Peoples of the World" art exhibit, Junior Achievement Trade Fair, A Century of Fashion featuring women's apparel from 1840 to 1940, high performance and custom car show, a model airplane exhibit and old cars brought in by the Packards of Chicago Club.

Still other exhibits have included telephone equipment, a coin show, tropical fish displayed by Midwest Aquarists Inc., metal sculpture and antiques.

The unusual has been represented, too. The U.S. Air Force brought in two training planes and the Chanute Air Force Base band. The Miss Hoffman Estates Pageant was staged once inside Woodfield, and Pet World sponsored a pet race.

For the November 1972 Winter Shop and Ski Show, a giant, carpeted ski slope was built. Ski techniques and rescues were demonstrated, and the public got a chance to ski indoors.

A NINE-HOLE MINIATURE golf course was set up for the 1973 Sports and Recreation Week, as well as a fishing hole, golf driving range, baseball clinic, judo and karate exhibits and a tennis fashion show.

In February 1973, a group of DePaul University students were invited to paint flowers, figures and flame motifs on new Opel Manta cars. The paint was washable, though.

An annual event is the visit of the Jet's Petting Zoo. The Lincoln Park Zoo Zoomobile visited last year as part of the Suburban Park and Recreation Assn. Expo. The parks also sponsored a penny carnival and put on a belly dancing show.

Widely known television stars, including Gabriel Kaplan and John Travolta of "Welcome Back, Kotter," have made appearances to promote their latest record albums. Travolta's appearance got slightly out of hand when 15,000 to 20,000 screaming fans showed up. Several fainted, and there were minor injuries to many, including one policeman.

FRANZ BENTLEER brought his $500,000 Stradivarius violin and his Royal Strings to help open the House of Lewis store. The 12-foot-tall Gerri the Fabulous Gialfo was another visitor.

Christmas is always a special time at the center, with lots of caroling and a spectacular Disney World castle exhibit for the children.

Among the more cerebral events has been a debate between teams from the University of Chicago and Oxford University and a three-part seminar on "The Total Woman."

Woodfield's fifth anniversary celebration this week also has elements of culture and entertainment. The Harlem Globetrotters appear today and rock-folk singer Bill Quateman will perform at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

The Playmakers Theater For Children will perform songs, dance and pantomime at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Thursday and Friday and at 11 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Audiences will be taught disco dancing at 6:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday and at 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday by Michael Preston and Lenae Silvestri of Zorine's.

There will be square dance demonstrations at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday and at noon Saturday and Sunday.

Sheffield residents to meet Coste

Residents of Schaumburg's Sheffield Estates subdivision were asked Tuesday to meet with Village Mgr. John E. Coste to discuss problems with Levitt Residential Properties Inc.

Rita Gaffke, 2200 Hitchingpost Rd.

told the village board that residents are concerned about construction of quadrooms begun by Levitt last week. Mrs. Gaffke said she and her neighbors moved into Levitt homes about 3 months ago. She was spokeswoman for about six families present at Tuesday's village board meeting.

"We paid a premium price for lake lots and were told by Levitt sales people the land behind us was unbuildable and would be a park. Now $30,000 quads are going up in back of our $70,000 houses," Mrs. Gaffke said. SHEFFIELD ESTATES is south of Bode Road, east of Knollwood Dr.

Coste said a Levitt representative had assured him the quad units are in Sheffield Manor, a development approved by the village board years ago. The Levitt people say there are no multi-family units in Sheffield Estates, Coste said.

Louis Shaasian, Levitt's regional manager told The Herald Tuesday the quads are in Sheffield Manor. He said most of the quad units were occupied before Sheffield Village was built.

"We have just started a few more units near these homes, but the underground work has been in for a couple of years."

He said it is "far-fetched" to say Levitt salespeople would tell residents the area would not contain quad homes.

Trustees instructed Coste to check with the builder to examine village records and to meet with the residents by Thursday morning.

8-year-old son released from hospital

Man still critical after auto crash

A 28-year-old Schaumburg father of two remained in critical condition Tuesday at a Waukegan hospital following a weekend auto accident in which his wife and another man were killed.

Officials at St. Theresa Hospital, Waukegan, said Wayne Garreau, 1546 Revere Circle, remained critical in the intensive care unit. Garreau reportedly suffered multiple injuries in a two-car crash Saturday night in which his wife, Margaret, 27, and Mark Kafer, 21, of Wonder Lake, were killed.

Garreau's 8-year-old son, Scott, was released from Woodstock Memorial Hospital, Woodstock, Tuesday. His sister, 6-year-old Caroline, remained in good condition at the hospital's pediatric section Tuesday night.

Also injured in the crash, Thomas Lebrecht, 21, of Wonder Lake, was reported in critical condition Tuesday in the intensive care unit of Sherman Hospital, Elgin. Hospital officials incorrectly reported Monday that Lebrecht was in serious condition.

Members of the Garreau family were injured when the station wagon in which they were riding crashed with a van driven by Lebrecht, in which Kafer was a passenger, in McHenry County Saturday.

McHenry County Sheriff's Police Tuesday said Lebrecht failed to yield the right-of-way to the Garreau auto at the intersection of Thayer Road and Ill. Rte. 47 and ran broadside into the family's station wagon.

Police said they have not filed charges in the crash.

'Wild west' tops homecoming for Conant students

Following the theme of the "Wild West," Conant High School homecoming festivities began Tuesday at the school, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates.

Students will vote for homecoming queen today. The nominees are Linda Bergant, Dece Kozak, Karen Newman, Debbie Stickle and Diane Williams. The queen will be crowned at an assembly Friday, followed by a parade beginning at 2 p.m. at Blackhawk School, 770 Illinois Blvd., Hoffman Estates. Conant girls will play in a powderpuff football game at 4 p.m.

A carnival will be held at the school from 5 to 9 p.m. Friday and noon to 4 p.m. Saturday. The varsity football game against Hoffman Estates High School will be played at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The homecoming dance, "The Round-Up," will begin at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at the school, featuring music by Wilderness.

Voting demonstration

Campaign workers for Republican secretary of state candidate Bill Harris will demonstrate the punch-card voting system Saturday at the Barrington Square Mall.

Lynn Channer and Dick Reinwaldt, the Schaumburg Township Coordinators for Harris' campaign, will explain the system between noon and 2 p.m.

Parks cut terms of commissioners

An ordinance reducing the terms of Hoffman Estates Park Board members from six to four years has been passed by the park board.

The action was related to a move earlier by the board to increase the number of commissioners from five to seven beginning next spring.

Six commissioners are to be elected next spring and one in 1979.

Two of the commissioners elected in 1977 will serve two-year terms so that election of the commissioners is staggered every two years.

Village GOP slates dinner Saturday

The annual dinner-dance of the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township will be Saturday at the Lancer Steak House, Algonquin and Meacham Roads, Schaumburg.

There will be no speeches, but a number of Republican candidates in the Nov. 2 election will meet constituents.

Tickets are $15 a person and are available from precinct captains or by phoning 884-0738.

Cocktails will be served from a cash bar beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dinner is scheduled at 7:30 p.m., followed by a performance of the ROOST Frolics.

Music will be provided by the Ed Jacob Orchestra. Dancing will be from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Kids 'spook' films Oct. 29 at library

The Indian Trails Public Library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling, will sponsor a Spook Spectacular from 7 to 8:45 p.m. Oct. 29.

Films starring Frankenstein, Wolfman and Dracula will be featured. Children must be in third grade or above to be admitted.

Free tickets are available at the children's department from Sunday to Oct. 29. There will be one ticket per person and no one will be admitted without a ticket.

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law.

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostroff, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far-reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostroff.

"One is equal protection for Mr.

Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarriage doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "hulderous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rineola of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony payments.

RINEOLA DISAGREED with Ostroff's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough, I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

The nation

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt," in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman. All three men remain free, but Judge John Sirica can now set a date for them to report to federal marshals and begin serving their coverup sentences.

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.36 points Monday, is at 832.33, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 829.63. In the last 12 sessions the closely followed Dow has plunged nearly 77 points.

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after city hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday — two in Oklahoma and one in Florida — but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field

To check citizen complaints

2 aldermen want probe of county voter canvass

Two Rolling Meadows aldermen Tuesday called for an investigation of a recent canvass of voters in Rolling Meadows ordered by the office of Cook County Clerk Stanley T. Kasper.

Aldermen Merrill Wuerch, 1st, and William Ahrens, 2nd, called for the probe during Tuesday's city council meeting.

The council ordered City Atty. Ray Kula to check with county officials on how the canvass was conducted and if the complaints of several Rolling Meadows residents against the canvass were legitimate.

"MANY OF MY WARD'S residents believe they have lost their right to vote because someone says they weren't home (when canvassers called)," Wuerch said.

"They tell me that if you are not at home when the canvassers arrive, you have to appear later in the Cook County Clerk's offices, or you automatically lose your right to vote," Wuerch said.

Several elderly people in the 1st ward complained that they were not aware of the canvass and later found a note informing them they had been canvassed and were found to be not home.

Wuerch said residents in his ward believe they must appear in Kasper's Chicago offices during the week or be considered nonregistered voters.

AHRENS SAID "HE HAS received similar complaints from residents in his ward."

Ald. James Huddleston, 4th, told the council the canvass was ordered by Cook County officials at the request of both Democrats and Republicans.

"Let's shoot 'em both," Ahrens said, "and ask our attorney's to find out what's going on. It doesn't make sense."

Wuerch said he thought it was unfair for canvassers to come to a home between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. and expect to find someone there.

"THIS IS RIDICULOUS and unfair. I hate to have a voter removed from the rolls, perhaps because he is unable to take a day off and appear downtown," Wuerch said.

"What happens is if a couple isn't home and are qualified registered voters they are still forced to go to Kasper's offices to keep their right to vote. This is not fair," he said.

Huddleston said he couldn't understand why the canvassers didn't ask neighbors if the person who is not home still lives at the address they were checking.

Pigeon breeder calls foul, blames troubles on crows

A now bird-less Rolling Meadows pigeon fancier is trying to convince the city that his fowl were not foul and anything but common.

Racing pigeons, Robert Jasch told a city council committee Monday night, "are thoroughbreds and unique" and should not be lumped together with chickens, ducks and other common fowl in the eyes of the law.

A four-year-old city ordinance prohibits keeping fowl, and, after police received an anonymous complaint from a neighbor, Jasch was forced late last month to kill three of his birds and give eight others to another pigeon breeder.

"THE CROWS in the area are really the bad guys," Jasch said. "But when they fly over the neighbors' laundry lines, it's my homing pigeons who get the blame. There are usually hundreds of crows messing all over, but no one does anything about them."

Jasch argued that a properly maintained coop should offend no one and suggested that the city consider issuing permits for pigeon breeders. "Then you could inspect my coops, and if they are really dirty or a nuisance, I wouldn't get the permit," he said.

He also argued that he should be allowed to keep at least two birds in his backyard coop at 256 Hawk Ln. because he owned a pair of pigeons before the city ordinance was adopted.

"I'm not a lawyer or anything, but it seems to me when an ordinance is passed that stops people from building a fence, you don't make people who have already built a fence tear it down," he said.

ALD. JAMES Huddleston, 4th, told Jasch to enlist the aid of other pigeon racers.

"Find out how they overcome objections," he said. "Enlist the aid of pigeon clubs and perhaps your own neighbors, and then come back to this committee and we'll see what we can do."

The committee also asked administrative aide Rod Blanne to find out how other communities regulate birds and promised to make its decision on Jasch's request at its Nov. 8 meeting.

"I'm not too hopeful," Jasch said later, "because I don't think my neighbors will help me. I don't know why because my birds hurt no one. I don't think it's fair that I can't find out who complained, because I can't ask them what it is they object to."

Court nixes plea on nun's alimony

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimo-

ny. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimocine were dispatched by the state last week to the area, although he did not know how many persons have been inoculated so far.

He said there have been no reports of adverse reactions among Illinois residents inoculated since last week.

"THE PROGRAM has been suspended temporarily," Hayes said. "We have heard from the Center for Disease Control (in Atlanta) and we did find out that these were three of the 1,200 people vaccinated in this state (in Pennsylvania). In light of the publicity that it has drawn, Dr. Lashof decided it would be best to suspend the program."

He said officials do not know how long the suspension will last. "Hopefully it will be very short," he said.

Hayes confirmed that Illinois' initial vaccine supply came from the Parke-Davis Co., the same firm that supplied vaccine to Pennsylvania, where the deaths occurred.

He stressed, however, that there is

Dist. 59 hearing today on unit school

Public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area unit school district proposal will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at Elk Grove High School.

The proposed unit district includes Forest View and Elk Grove high schools in High School Dist. 214 in addition to Dist. 59 schools. The elementary and high schools would be placed under one school board and administration and the unit district would have the same boundaries as Dist. 59.

Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say the proposed district would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base but only about 27 per cent of the students.

DIST. 59 OFFICIALS favor the unit district, saying tax revenue generated from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

Anyone affected by the proposed unit district may testify at tonight's hearing at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. Future hearing dates and times will be established before tonight's hearing ends about 10 p.m.

After all interested parties have been heard, County Schools' Supt. Richard Martwick will make a recommendation on the unit district to Illinois Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin.

Cronin will decide whether an election will be conducted on the issue. If an election is conducted, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

Preschool signup now under way

The Rolling Meadows Public Library is accepting registrations for a six-week preschool session.

Preschool is a series of morning and afternoon play and story-time sessions for children ages 3 and 4.

Parents may register their child for any of three sessions to be held on Tuesday mornings from 10 to 10:30 a.m. or Wednesdays from 10 to 10:30 a.m. and 1 to 1:30 p.m.

Further information may be obtained by calling 259-0050.

Phone troubles plague 1st day at driver test station

About 100 Northwest suburban residents saved themselves a trip to Libertyville or Elgin Tuesday by using the new driver testing station in Schaumburg.

But those who tried to call first could not be sure if the six-year wait for a suburban testing center was really over.

If they called 893-8660, the number publicized by Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett's office, they heard a recording say the number had yet to be connected.

IF THEY CALLED directory assistance, they learned that there was no listing for a driver testing station in Schaumburg.

If they called Dan Biardello of Illinois Bell Telephone's administrative offices, they learned that the 893 number was incorrect. The right number, he said, was 843-1450.

If they called that number, they might have heard the phone ring dozens of times without being answered. Or they might have heard station director Robert Guzman answer to say that the first-day turnout was much less than the 700 customers he had expected.

The new center's telephone woes began with "a clerical error," Biardello explained. "We gave the Secretary of State's office an incorrect number."

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE was not able to straighten out the problem, he said, because it normally takes two or three days for new numbers to be listed with the information operators.

And some callers heard the endless ringing, he said, because "there were equipment problems," he said.

Guzman said only three of the office's four telephones seemed to be working properly.

Biardello said callers who dial 893-8660 today will be referred to the correct number — 843-1450.

Case to help screen academy hopefuls

Police Chief Lewis Case of Rolling Meadows has accepted an invitation from U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, to serve on a candidate screening panel for U.S. military academies.

Case and five others will review candidates for congressional sponsorship to Army, Navy and Air Force academies at West Point, N.Y.; Annapolis, Md.; and Colorado Springs, Colo.

According to law, candidates for military academies must be sponsored by a congressman. The screening panel will advise Crane on prospects, Case said.

Crane offered the position to Case last week, Case said. His one-year term will begin Dec. 11 when the committee next meets.

$5,000 fund plea delayed by panel

A request by the Palatine Historical Society for $5,000 to renovate the society's new museum has been tabled by the Palatine Township Board of Auditors.

Historical society members said they have raised about half of the nearly $40,000 needed to renovate the new museum, a 103-year-old house at 234 E. Palatine Rd.

The board will make a decision on the request at the Oct. 25 meeting.

References asked on bidders

The board will seek references on two low bidders before awarding a contract for painting the interior of the township hall.

R. M. Harstad Painting of Wheeling bid $800 for the job, and Professional Decorating of Schaumburg bid $1,100 to paint the inside of the building.

Auditors said they were impressed with the job done by Professional Decorators on the outside of the township hall, and wanted references before awarding the interior job to the low bidder.

Punch-card voting system

Auditor John Serio suggested that the township begin a campaign to inform voters how to use the new punch-card voting system prior to the Nov. 2 election.

Voters may see and try out the new system at the township hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd.

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law....

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostroff, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far-reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostroff.

"One is equal protection for Mr.

Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rinella of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony payments.

RINELLA DISAGREED with Ostroff's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does."

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.

A U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington Tuesday cited "overwhelming evidence of guilt," in affirming the Watergate coverup convictions and prison terms of former Nixon aides John Mitchell, John Ehrlichman and H. The United Auto Workers Union announced Tuesday night that 170,000 Ford Motor Co. workers have approved a new three-year contract by a narrow 489-vote margin. The workers have been on strike for 28 days. Ford said workers will begin returning to work at some plants Wednesday.

Economy

The economic rebound lost more steam Tuesday as the stock market plummeted another 8.47 points. The Dow Jones average, which lost 11.56 points Monday, is at 922.33, its lowest closing since Jan. 16 when the blue chip indicator finished the day at 929.63. THE WALLS CAME tumbling down Tuesday at the former home of the Arlington Plating Co. in Palatine. The abandoned building has been torn down and officials of the Palatine National Bank, owners of the site, will meet with village officials to determine if the village would like to use the site as a parking lot. The building has been vacant for about one year.

Village rejects federal funds for Colfax plan

A proposal to seek federal funds for the controversial W. Colfax Street improvement project has been rejected by the Palatine Village Board.

The project, which was scrapped two years ago by the Republican village board after the previous administration spent nearly $100,000 in legal and engineering fees in preparation for the improvement project, was defeated again Monday by a 4-2 vote of the board.

The board voted to reject a proposal by Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig that the village apply for funds available under a special federal program which, if approved, would have paid for the project.

UNDER TERMS of the U. S. Public Works Employment Act, funds are available to villages which have engineering plans available for immediate use. The measure is intended to provide jobs and calls for projects to begin within 90 days of the awarding of a grant. Applications will be accepted from Oct. 25 - Nov. 19.

Harwig said the $1.4 million Colfax Street project, which called for widening the street from two to four lanes between Smith Street and Quentin Road and the installation of a 72-inch storm sewer, is the only village project for which engineering data is available. Harwig also proposed to add the cost of signalization at the Colfax-Smith Street intersection to the project.

The grant program would have provided total funding for the project if it was approved.

"I am totally against this and I think it is a total mistake to create a four-lane highway which dumps traffic into a residential area," Trustee Richard W. Fonte said. "It's a four-lane highway from nowhere to nowhere and I'm surprised it's being brought up again."

TRUSTEE ROBERT J. Guss echoed Fonte's opposition to the project and said the point at which the proposed storm sewer would drain into Salt Creek is "in the worst of shape."

Trustee Fred J. Zajonc, who was the only trustee two years ago to endorse continuation of the project, chided Fonte and Guss for their stands. "This is an example of complete blindness on Mr. Fonte and Mr. Guss's parts," Zajonc said. "We've annexed Countryside and the people up there want a way to get down to the business area."

Zajonc said Tuesday the matter should be brought to the Chamber of Commerce and Palatine Advisory Board for consideration before it is abandoned. "This is an opportunity we should not overlook."

The village board in August 1974, voted to drop the project, which would have levied a special assessment on 33 property owner to pay for 30 percent of the cost. The action came after the previous board had won a court case declaring the special assessments legal.

At the time the plan was rejected, board members cited the same reasons of increased traffic and potential flooding problems as reasons for dropping the project.

Developer plan compatible with Inverness look

A new version of townhouses and condominiums that would "meld in quite compatibly with the image and rest of Inverness" was proposed Tuesday to the village board by the developer of a 40-acre site near Harper College.

Representatives of Arthur J. Rogers Enterprises presented a new plan which would reduce the number of housing units at the site, on Roselle Road, from 304 to 123 and lower the number of units per acre from 7.7 to 3.7.

The new plan also calls for a two-story maximum height for the buildings and for construction of 38 detached units to be occupied by one family.

THE ORIGINAL PLAN was suggested in 1973 after Inverness trustees and Robert Lonz, the owner of the site, nearly went to court to decide whether multifamily dwellings could be built in Inverness. Lonz had petitioned to pull his property out of the village boundaries to escape Inverness' requirement of single-family homes on one-acre lots.

As in the original plan, the units in the new proposal would sell for between $75,000 and $100,000.

"These would meld in quite compatibly with the image and rest of Inverness," Ralph Weston of the Rogers group told the board.

The board referred to the village plan commission request by Rogers to begin preparing the land for construction on speculation.

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimo-

ny. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimo-

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to, ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday—two in Oklahoma and one in Florida—but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 238,000 doses of swine flu vaccine were dispatched by the state last week to the area, although he did not know how many persons have been inoculated so far.

He said there have been no reports of adverse reactions among Illinois residents inoculated since last week.

"THE PROGRAM has been suspended temporarily," Hayes said. "We have heard from the Center for Disease Control (in Atlanta) and we did find out that these were three of the 1,200 people vaccinated in this state (in Pennsylvania)."

In light of the publicity that it has drawn, Dr. Lashof decided it would be best to suspend the program.

He said officials do not know how long the suspension will last. "Hopefully it will be very short," he said.

He stressed, however, that there is

Plum Grove Hills gains approval

Construction of the first phase of the Plum Grove Hills subdivision at Illinois Avenue and Quentin Road is expected to begin shortly, following final approval of the project by the Palatine Village Board Monday.

Law Draper, developer of the project, said the first phase of the three-phase development will include construction of 50 units on 24.9 acres. The project will include about 175 homes on the 74-acre site.

The homes will sell for $80,000 and more.

Sewer grant sought

The village is moving ahead with plans to apply for a federal grant to help fund the sewer separation project for the older section of Palatine. The board approved a resolution authorizing Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones to sign the grant application, a resolution of intent to start planning for the project and a resolution stating the village has the funds to pay its share of the work.

The $16 million project involves separating storm and sanitary sewers in 1,010 acres of the older section of the village. The village has been ranked 32 on a priority list by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency, virtually assuring funding for planning, engineering and construction of the project.

Sand separator buy OK'd

The board authorized the purchase of a sand separator at a cost of $14,970 to be installed at Well No. 9, located in the Countryside development. The newest well in the village system has been unavailable for use because traces of sand are present in the water.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said the separator will eliminate all the sand and enable the well to be connected to the village water system.

Harwig said he was unable to secure more than one bid on the separator because it is a specialized piece of equipment. J. P. Miller Artesian Well Co., which built the well, will provide and install the separator.

Firm to mark pavements

Maintenance Coatings Co., Addison was awarded a $37,000 contract for pavement marking on village streets. The bid was about $2,000 more than the estimate for the work but was the lowest bid received.

Subdivision signs guide OK'd

An ordinance outlining standards for constructing subdivision identification signs has been approved by the village board.

The ordinance calls for signs to be made of noncombustible material, be limited to 100 square feet, meet setback requirements set by the village manager, be nonilluminated, be maintained by the homeowners' association and have lettering no more than one foot in height.

Ill. Rte. 53 new border

Crossing guard hired

The board approved hiring an additional crossing guard for the intersection of Mallard Drive and Illinois Avenue near Hunting Ridge School. The board also referred to committee a proposal to upgrade the hourly pay scale for crossing guards.

Planner's study accepted

The board accepted planner David Outhred's study of the central business district. The report will be incorporated as an amendment to the village master plan.

$5,000 fund plea delayed by panel

A request by the Palatine Historical Society for $5,000 to renovate the society's new museum has been tabled by the Palatine Township Board of Auditors.

Historical society members said they have raised about half of the nearly $40,000 needed to renovate the new museum, a 103-year-old house at 224 E. Palatine Rd. The board will make a decision on the request at the Oct. 25 meeting.

References asked on bidders

The board will seek references on two low bidders before awarding a contract for painting the interior of the township hall. R. M. Harstad Painting of Wheeling bid $800 for the job, and Professional Decorating of Schaumburg bid $1,100 to paint the inside of the building.

Auditors said they were impressed with the job done by Professional Decorators on the outside of the township hall, and wanted references before awarding the interior job to the low bidder.

Village firm on Hicks Road walk

A sidewalk will be installed on the west side of Hicks Road between Reseda and Carpenter drives despite objections from residents who say it will cause drainage problems on their property.

Work on the sidewalk, part of the $2.5 million Hicks Road widening project, was halted in August at the request of Palatine officials because drainage plans were not being followed.

Residents said grading of the sidewalk was not being done to specifications and would cause flooding in their rear yards.

THE RESIDENTS CAME to the village board again this week and said the proposed solution will not remedy the situation.

Hugh Gallagher, spokesman for the 10 homeowners, said installation of the sidewalk will affect drainage problems in the area. The proposed alternative calls for the sidewalk to be installed four feet from the property owners' fences with the area between the sidewalk and the fence to serve as a drainage area.

"Before we waste funds on such effort, we proposed that optimum grading without the sidewalk be implemented," Gallagher said. "If the sidewalk is so critical, we could consider installing one in 1977."

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said the proposal will create less of a drainage problem for the residents than exists now. He also said the sidewalk is needed because when the Hicks Road work is completed, it will be safer for pedestrians.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS also said if the sidewalk does create a problem, culverts can be installed along the sidewalk to drain excess water into the street sewer.

Officials also told residents their drainage problems may not be related to the sidewalk program. "We've had drainage problems in that area before because the developer didn't follow the approved plans," Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said.

Jones said the board would be willing to review the situation to determine if the developer was at fault. He said, however, that if the sidewalk is not installed now, it probably will not be in the future because the state is paying for the work.

Jones said village officials will look into the drainage problem in the area, and if the sidewalk adds to problems, steps to remedy the situation will be taken.

Future of O'Hare buses doubtful, Ryan says

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan, who last year fought to have Continental Air Transport Co. service resumed in the Northwest suburbs, now says he is "less than optimistic" about the buses' future.

Ryan predicted the possible end of Continental bus service in the area after meeting with John McCarthy, company vice president.

The buses provide transportation to O'Hare Airport from several Northwest suburbs, including Arlington Heights and Palatine.

"I'M NOT VERY optimistic, in fact I'm less than optimistic, about the future of Continental here unless the ridership improves soon," Ryan said.

Last year, Ryan filed a complaint with the Illinois Commerce Commission against Continental for having suspended service in 1974, claiming the company violated its state charter to provide daily bus service where needed.

"They're obligated under the charter to provide service, but unless ridership picks up it would be a lesson in futility to insist they continue it," Ryan said Monday.

McCarthy was unavailable for comment Monday, but Continental Gen. Mgr. Robert Sigel estimated the Northwest suburban service costs the company $1,100 a week.

It costs $24 an hour to run a bus, he said, and Continental has at least one bus running every hour, eight hours a day, seven days a week in this area. The loss was computed after subtracting the $4.25 fare paid by one customer per hour, the current ridership.

"It's a drain on us, certainly," Sigel said. "These are buses that could probably be used profitably somewhere else."

"WE'LL CONTINUE the service at least until Oct. 25," Sigel said. "There has been no termination date set and we will do all we can to stimulate and continue service. But profit is still our motive."

Although he claimed that "advertising and education are the key to success in public transportation," Sigel said no plans have been made to increase either in this area.

Ryan said McCarthy told him Continental will investigate and report to him in two weeks about possible bus runs to O'Hare Airport from area hotels, Harper College in Palatine, and Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg.

The village board will discuss whether service should be discontinued at its meeting Oct. 18, Ryan said.

"Continental is losing substantial sums, and a decision probably will be made soon," he said.

Brockway crossing to close for repairs

The Brockway Street railroad crossing in Palatine will be closed for one week beginning Monday while Chicago and North Western Ry. workers rebuild it.

The crossing was one of three in the village scheduled for repair by the railroad, but only minor patching was done to the Palatine Road and Plum Grove Road crossings.

Village officials have expressed displeasure with the railroad's decision not to rebuild all three crossings, but company officials said they did not have the money for the work.

The railroad's proposal to the village that it contribute part of the funds to do additional asphalt work at the Palatine and Plum Grove road crossings has been abandoned because company officials said they have no crews available for the work.

Village Pres. Wendell R. Jones said the village should at least continue to make known to the railroad its "extreme displeasure" with the minor patching that was done at the two crossings.

Man breaks window with fist: police

Palatine police early Tuesday arrested a 22-year-old village man and charged him with smashing his fist through a window at a drive-in restaurant.

Police said they arrested Charles J. Hermann, of 15 E. Slade St., at 1:11 a.m. Tuesday after he put his left fist through a sliding glass panel for take-out orders at the Jack-in-the-Box restaurant at 4 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Hermann reportedly had an argument with a Jack-in-the-Box employee. Hermann was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he received three stitches for cuts to his left hand, police said.

Hermann was charged with criminal damage to property and released on $1,000 bond. He was ordered to appear Oct. 28 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Court nixes plea on nun's alimony

by NANCY GOTLER

The U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday refused to hear a former Arlington Heights man's contention that he should be excused from paying his ex-wife alimony because she has entered a Roman Catholic convent.

The decision ends a four-year battle through the Illinois and federal court systems by James Lane, now of Los Angeles, against his ex-wife of 21 years, Sister Mary A. Lane.

Lane sought a change in his divorce decree in 1972, contending his former wife had "remarried" the church when she entered the Dominican Sisters of Perpetual Rosary Convent in Milwaukee and, therefore, was not entitled to alimony.

HE WAS ORDERED after the August 1970 divorce to pay his ex-wife $250 a month. He received custody of two of their three children still living at home.

In April 1974, Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert L. Hunter required Lane to continue paying alimo-

ny. "In my opinion," the judge said, "there is not sufficient change of circumstances to reduce or eliminate alimony."

At the time Lane testified he did not object to his ex-wife's entering a convent, but that he could not afford to pay her.

He appealed Hunter's decision to the Illinois Appellate Court, which Dec. 31, 1975, said, "We conclude that compelling James Lane to pay alimo-

Swine flu shots delayed outside Chicago

by TONI GINETTI

The swine flu inoculation program in Illinois outside Chicago was suspended Tuesday in the wake of the deaths of three elderly Pennsylvania residents who died hours after being inoculated.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Dept. of Public Health, made the decision at 3:30 p.m. to "suspend temporarily" the state's swine flu immunization program after only hours earlier assuring that the program would continue.

In Chicago, however, Dr. Murray Brown, health commissioner, said the city's program will proceed. The city is dealing directly with the federal government in administering its program.

"THERE WILL BE no change," Dr. Brown said. "There is no evidence to support the idea that we should change." He said the city's supply of swine flu vaccine does not come from the firm that supplied other parts of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

Heart attacks caused deaths: officials

by United Press International

The deaths of three elderly persons in Pittsburgh after they received swine flu inoculations was due to ordinary heart attacks and not the vaccine, according to preliminary findings Tuesday by the federal Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Three other deaths of elderly persons shortly after receiving swine flu inoculations were reported Tuesday—two in Oklahoma and one in Florida—but in each case officials said they did not believe the deaths were related to the shots.

However, he said the source of the vaccine supply was not a factor in the decision to continue the program. "None of the professionals in the field believed these deaths were related to the vaccine," he began. Swine flu inoculation began in Illinois last week in Chicago and the eight surrounding counties. Austin Hayes, a spokesman for the state public health department, said Tuesday some 238,000 doses of swine flu vac-

Dr. Robert Sencer, disease control center director, said autopsy reports, field studies taken Tuesday by the center's epidemiologists in Pittsburgh and results of vaccine inoculations elsewhere indicated that the three died of heart attacks unrelated to the flu shots.

"IT LOOKS AS though this is a circumstantial situation where three people just happened to have heart attacks close together," Sencer said.

Sencer urged state and local health officials to continue administering the

Sticker sales down; deadline 'unenforceable'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

The sale of 1976-77 Prospect Heights vehicle stickers is lagging badly and the city has no way of enforcing Friday's purchase deadline, Mayor Richard E. Wolf said Tuesday.

The city has not hired off-duty policemen to patrol the city for vehicles without stickers and necessary citation forms have not been ordered.

The sticker price for passenger vehicles is $10.

Residents who purchase vehicle stickers after Friday also will be charged a $10 penalty provided by an ordinance passed by the city council this summer.

The city has collected only 20 percent of the $84,000 it expects to receive from the sale of stickers which began Sept. 15. The city began the early sale of vehicle stickers to raise funds to operate the new city government.

"THE CITY HAD hoped to have violators ticketed after the deadline, but it is unlikely that we'll be able to arrange the citation process by Saturday or Monday," Wolf said. "We're a new city and we're just getting off to a slow start with this."

City officials discovered this week that it will take some time before the necessary citations can be printed. However, there are generalized ticket forms available for the city's immediate use, Wolf said.

The city council must decide at its regular 7:30 p.m. meeting Monday what citation forms to order, which agency to hire special police patrol from, how to collect ticket fines and which district in the Cook County Circuit Court to schedule ticket dates in, Wolf said.

The city council's public safety committee has talked to officials of the Cook County Sheriff's Police and the Mount Prospect Police Dept. about hiring off-duty policemen to patrol the city for vehicles that do not have the stickers.

EVEN IF SHERIFF'S police are hired for special patrols, they will issue only warnings and not tickets to violators. Sheriff's police officials have said they are reluctant to enforce the early vehicle sticker sales deadline unless they are contracted

Vehicle stickers deadline Friday

Prospect Heights residents have until Friday to purchase their 1976-77 city vehicle stickers.

The sticker prices are $10 for passenger cars and motorcycles, and $10 to $30 for trucks depending on the gross weight.

There is a special $1 rate for senior citizens and a $7.50 discount price for residents who can prove they purchased a 1976 Cook County vehicle sticker which is good until Jan. 1.

The stickers can be purchased from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. today through Friday at Prospect Heights City Hall, 13 Prospect Ct.

The vehicle stickers also are available today from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd.; the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St., and the Stevenson School, 1375 S. Wolf Rd.

The stickers are being sold during regular banking hours at the Palwaukee Bank, 851 Piper Ln.

Residents with questions about the sale of stickers or the city boundaries can call the city hall weekdays at 338-6070.

The sheriff's police is providing protection to the community at no cost until Jan. 1. The service does not include a crackdown on violators of the city's vehicle sticker ordinance, Wolf said.

"The slow sales of vehicle stickers concerns me because the proceeds will be used to maintain our streets during the winter. So if residents expect this service, they should buy the stickers," he said.

Wolf said he is uncertain when the city will begin enforcing the vehicle sticker ordinance and ticketing violators.

He plans to ask the city council to consider an alternative to police enforcement of vehicle sticker violations that would involve computer pinpointing of residents who have not purchased stickers.

A COMPUTER printout of cars registered to Prospect Heights residents could be obtained from the Illinois secretary of state's office and fines could be levied against violators who do not purchase city stickers, Wolf said.

A similar check method currently is being used by the Village of Mount Prospect, he said.

The city council also has the option of extending the purchase deadline for vehicle stickers another two weeks, according to the ordinance, he said, pending the project.

Australian is AFS student

One of the American Field Service students in Mount Prospect this school year is Jenni Andrew from Perth, Australia.

She is 17 and a senior at Prospect High School. Jenni is living at the home of Robert and Dawn Rebeck, 604 W. Shabonee Tr.

At Prospect, Jenni is studying American history, French, English, English Literature and calculus. She said classes here are easier than in Australia, but is surprised at the variety of subjects available to students — and that they can make their own selection.

"Back home," Jenni said, "the course of study is almost entirely planned for us. We have very little choice of subject matter."

Jenni is surprised — and pleased — that there is so much to do outside of school. Homecoming particularly was exciting for the Australian.

She is delighted with the fall season. She has never seen autumn at home because it is so much warmer there.

"The grass is usually brown and the trees are never rich green like here," she said. "And the trees don't change to bright colors like they have here in recent weeks."

Also, she has never seen snow and is anxious to see and feel it.

Jenni's home is about six miles from Perth which is in western Australia. She has one sister, 15.

AFS students are available for appearances at meetings of groups, clubs and organizations. Call the high school for more information.

TOM COOPER, head of the Mount Prospect Park District, is planning to retire Nov. 1 next year. Cooper, 59, will have served in the recreation position for 20 years.

TRINITY UNITED Methodist Church, 605 W. Golf Rd., will hold its annual rummage sale Friday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

MOUNT PROSPECT Police Chief Ralph Doney recently was appointed to the Executive Advisory Committee of Cook County Sheriff Richard Etrod's Youth Services Dept.

THE HERSEY HIGH School marching band has been invited to participate in homecoming festivities at North Central College in Naperville, Ill., Oct. 23. The group will march in the parade and will perform at the pregame and half-time show.

North Central's opponent will be Carroll College of Waukegan, Wis.

Three-year-old case unresolved

Village to stay out of zone case

The Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday night voted 3-2 not to intervene on behalf of the Woodview Homeowners Assn. in a three-year-old zoning case.

The vote was brought to a special board meeting after the homeowners group asked the village to join in their defense as intervenors in a lawsuit filed in 1973 by Mount Prospect developer the J. M. Brickman Midwest Corp.

The suit was filed against the village after a previous village board denied Brickman's request to rezone 3.3 acres at Camp McDonald and River roads for construction of a six-story 85-unit apartment building with business offices on the first floor.

HOMEOWNERS SAID they have spent $3,000 for defense since June, 1975, when an appellate court decision allowed them to intervene in the case despite a compromise agreement between the developer and village.

Brickman to build a five-story, 80-unit apartment building on the site without business offices.

Woodview members object to the development and have said it is not compatible with current zoning in the neighborhood.

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. said the appellate court decision to overturn the lower court judgment and allow the homeowners to intervene in the case did not invalidate the consent decree. Attorneys for the homeowners, however, have said the court agreement no longer is valid.

RHEA SAID the legal opinion given to the village by Chicago attorney Martin Smith was that the court agreement is a binding contract between Mount Prospect and the developer. Although the village could have been subject to a breach of contract suit with Brickman, Rhea said the threat of a lawsuit did not influence his vote.

"The only thing that has changed in the past 2½ years is that these people have been allowed to intervene," Rhea said. "There are no other new facts and it can't persuade me to overturn the action of a board two years ago."

Trustee Michael H. Minton, who voted to rescind the 1974 agreement, said, "I think our own (legal) opinion could be contradictory in parts and subject to varying interpretations."

The homeowners, unhappy with the board's decision, are scheduled to go to trial with the developer Oct. 25. "There were some decisions made not on the merits of the case, but on legal threats and intimidations to the board," said Frederick W. Schlerhorn, a Woodfield member. "I'm surprised at the vote. I thought we had it."

Schlerhorn said the homeowners group will have to meet soon to "determine our next step in the defense."

Tighter concert controls to be asked by Doney

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney says tonight he will recommend to a village committee tighter security and crowd control at rock concerts in the Randhurst Ice Arena.

Doney's recommendation comes in the wake of trouble reported at the Sunday night concert in which Patrolman Ralph Timm, 36, was assaulted by several youths trying to break through a gate into the concert.

Timm suffered minor injuries when about seven persons pulled him through a doorway, then slammed the door on his arm. Timm was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

During the scuffle, Timm's tie and badge were ripped off and taken by one of the attackers, who police are seeking on an arrest warrant for assaulting an officer.

POLICE ALSO arrested a youth caught carrying a 20 gauge shotgun in his pants leg with two shells stuffed in his socks.

Police believe the gun was stolen from a vehicle parked at the Randhurst Shopping Center near the ice arena.

About six persons were arrested throughout the concert for charges of drug possession, intoxication, and public disturbance.

Doney said a great deal of gate-crashing was done at the concert which featured three bands, one of them the popular "Kansas." There were between 100 and 300 persons removed or asked to leave during the concert. About 3,500 persons attended the program.

DONEY SAID HE personally called in mutual aid back-up squads from Des Plaines, Cook County, Wheeling and Arlington Heights Sunday. In 15 minutes more than 50 extra policemen were on the scene, including Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers.

ny to his former wife after she entered a convent to become a nun does not deny him equal protection of the law.

And May 27 this year, the Illinois Supreme Court refused to hear the case, leading to Tuesday's high court decision.

LANE AND HIS ex-wife refused to comment on the high court's decision, of which neither had been aware until contacted by The Herald.

Joel F. Ostroff, the attorney who wrote the writ of certiorari requesting a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court, said he thought the court refused to hear the case because it was not far reaching enough.

"We feel there are two constitutional questions involved," said Ostroff.

"One is equal protection for Mr. Lane," he said. "A husband whose ex-wife is supported either by entering the job force or remarrying doesn't have to pay alimony. And the court order of alimony amounts to a government requirement that Mr. Lane contribute to the church, because his alimony payments amount to a savings for the Catholic church."

MOTHER MIRIAM Leonard of the Sisters of Perpetual Rosary said the court decision is "just and equitable."

Mother Miriam Leonard called Lane's appeal "ludicrous" because "he's been remiss on his payments to her since 1974."

Sister Mary A. Lane's attorney, Richard Rineola of Chicago, also said Lane has not paid alimony since Dec. 31, 1974 and that his client will sue for the money owed her.

Lane refused to comment about whether he has made recent alimony payments.

RINEOLA DISAGREED with Ostroff's view of the case and claimed there is "not really any Constitutional case involved."

Edward Rosenberg of Chicago, Lane's attorney, said, "If the separation of church and state in the U.S. Constitution doesn't reach far enough I don't know what does.

"The court has required him to contribute to the church," he said. "It's very sad, in my opinion, to think that the courts are closed to the average citizen."

Mother Superior Miriam Leonard said Sister Mary A. Lane is scheduled to take her final vows of poverty next May, after which she can't accept money from outside sources.
